

HIPPIE FLAVOR PERVADES WOODSTOCK THIS SUMMER

The Scene at Woodstock

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

Tinker Street ambles picturesquely past blocks of frame houses giving way to shops near the Village Green. Sheltered much of the way by ancient shade trees, it retains enough small town flavor to set anybody over 30 reminiscing about homemade ice cream and Saturday Evening Post delivery boys in knickers.

Or it did until recently. Suddenly this summer frame houses and even front porches have blossomed into boutiques. Obnoxious to the fact that the trees offer shelter from sunny glare, a continuous stream of yellow and pink-lensed shade wearers piles in and out of the shops. The street's two outdoor cafes are ideal for scene digging, otherwise known as ogling. And on Friday and Saturday nights, a large segment of Establishment Woodstock is there, getting a ringside view of a happening that has become a sight to behold. Up and down the street in a constant parade pass teeny boppers and overlaged juveniles, girls with pressed-straight blond hair and granny glasses, bearded youths in military coats and surfers' crosses, leather-garbed motorcyclists sputtering by on their choppers, high school dropouts in giant gilt earrings, stay-ins in General Custer hats, hundreds of elephant-cuffed legs flaunting rebellion.

Special

And real hippies! Some native born, some recently arrived, most (lugging bedrolls and sleeping bags) in town for the weekend as active members of the Rucksack Revolution. The hippies sprawl on street corners, rap, and ogle back at the ogles whose eyes are cemented on them. Tinker Street has been dubbed "the strip" almost overnight and, as a main playground of psychedelic '60s youth looking for the action, is becoming crammed with hip clothing haberdasheries, coffee shoppes, discotheques and rive-gauche cafes pouring their electronic music into the street with the aroma of a summer thunderstorm. It's a costumed Coney Island in the Catskills and the Now Generation seems intent on keeping it that way like some sort of pre-meditated carnival. But if it's a fun scene for the kids (in spite of the hucksters hustling, the old guard tourists hassling over the unhappy changes, and the establishment sometimes harassing), it is frightening to the local gentry. What disturbs them above and beyond the fact that the stampede is on to Woodstock as THE SCENE is that hippie junketeers have established a real beachhead. There is money to burn in hippiedom and a fair share of it is being invested in Woodstock real estate these days.

Time Marches On

EXAMPLE: Woodstock supported with antediluvian pride for 150 years the ancient and honorable trade of shoemaking. For the past 40 or more years, one shoe repairman or another worked away in a small wooden shop on the Village Green. But no more. That changed this month when the shoeman was moved out and a trinket shop moved in. Where leather and awl once reigned, amulets, incense, chimes, flutes, feathers, time local grocery has become Buddha prayer candles, ban- a mercantile venture into a ners, posters, rabbit skins, variety of leather goods . . . beads, pipes and prisms that and a front porch on which an send back distorted images are elderly lady lulled herself to offered to square customers by sleep every summer afternoon hippie merchants.

EXAMPLE: The corner bakery that for two decades dispensed gingersnaps and German chocolate cake to sweet-toothed Woodstockers has just given way to Saturn, a store offering relatively high-priced pong table giving beer guzzlers mod clothing and some other lightheadedness from the new gypsies.

U.S. Weekly Battle Deaths Rise

Fight Raging for Fourth Largest City

SAIGON (UPI)—About 150 North Vietnamese troops burst into Tay Ninh City northwest of Saigon at dawn today, seized homes around a temple and held off Allied counterattacks through the day, U.S. military sources said.

American infantrymen and South Vietnamese paratroopers and militiamen failed in efforts to rout the Communists from houses and bunkers in the nation's fourth largest city with 150,000 persons.

Preliminary reports said at least 50 of the Communists had been killed in the daylong fighting, with even more presumed dead in skirmishes with other Allied troops on the eastern and western flanks of the city.

U.S. and South Vietnamese losses were put at light with no numbers announced by the Allied command. American headquarters reported only that the action was continuing, refusing to give details.

In other developments reported by the U.S. Command:

—335 American soldiers were killed in action last week and 1,695 wounded. It was the most battle deaths in a month. South Vietnamese losses were 516 killed and 1,424 wounded, while Communist deaths were put at 4,360, subject to revision upward next week.

—The commander of U.S. paratroopers in the A Shau Valley said there are no Communist troops atop Hamburger Hill to his knowledge. And, said Maj. Gen. John M. Wright, if there were, he would blast them with air and artillery before committing troops to another Hamburger Hill campaign.

—U.S. military sources said the Viet Cong have orders to keep troops of the American 9th Infantry Division, two of whose brigades are going home, under attack as much as possible, even if it involves hitting them at airfields as they depart for home.

—Allied troops on the northern front reported more than 200 Communist troops slain in two days of battling, many of them killed in U.S. naval and dive bomber attacks.

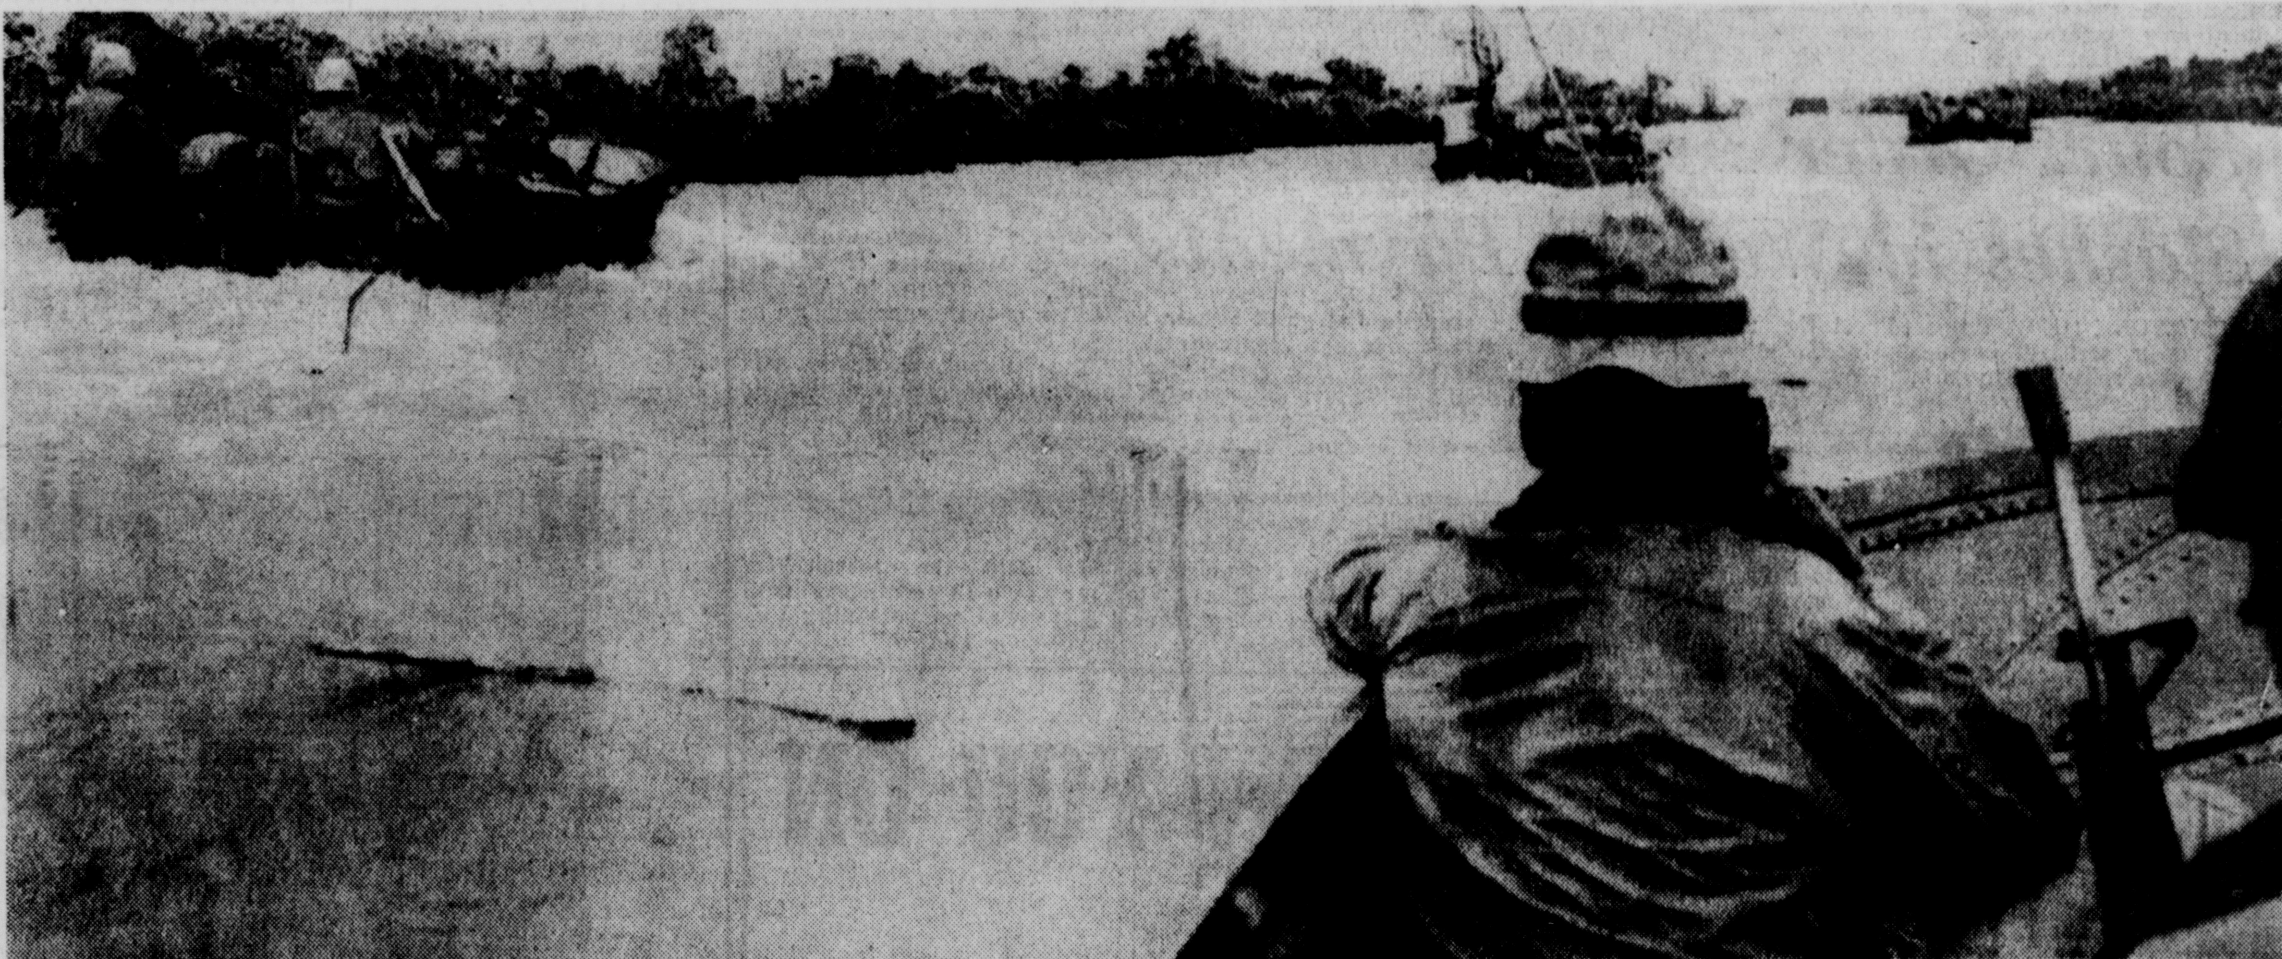

The fighting below the Demilitarized Zone DMZ and near the old U. S. Marine fortress at Khe Sanh cost South Vietnamese troops light losses while the Leathernecks lost 37 dead and 60 wounded.

Military spokesmen said a unit of the 9th Marines, soon to be withdrawn from the war zone, overran a North Vietnamese camp near Khe Sanh late Wednesday to end the two days of hard fighting.

Waiting until dive bombers had softened up their objective, the Leathernecks charged the dug-in Communists and killed 35 while losing nine killed and 14 wounded themselves, war communiques said.

That fighting in South Vietnam's northwest corner followed Tuesday's battles in which the Allies trapped Communist units infiltrating from North Vietnam along the coast and pounded them with naval guns and bombs.

Military spokesmen said it was the only major ground battling reported for late Wednesday, with the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese shelling 34 Allied towns and camps during the night and early today.

Clifford: Total Withdrawal

NEW YORK (AP) — Clark M. Clifford says that in view of changes in the world situation, the United States can and should reduce the fighting in Vietnam and, by the end of 1970, withdraw all ground combat troops.

Clifford served President Lyndon B. Johnson through 1968 as secretary of defense. His statement, at times scorchingly critical of the Saigon government, argues that the basic U.S. objective—to keep the Communist North from seizing the South—has been largely accomplished.

He says he contended while in office that "the more we continued to do in South Vietnam, the less likely the South Vietnamese were to shoulder their own burden."

Four years ago Clifford was regarded as a hawk because he had opposed the pause in the bombing of North Vietnam in late 1965. Later he was said to have persuaded Johnson to seek negotiations through a bombing halt.

In 1965, Clifford writes, Hanoi-supported forces were about to take over the South and only a heavy U.S. military presence could prevent it.

Since then, other events affected the situation. Clifford lists among these the fall of Nikita S. Khrushchev in Moscow, the widening Moscow-China feud, the destruction of Indonesia's Communist party and elimination of that Southeast Asia threat, and, recently, the Soviet-Chinese border clashes, which he says divert China's resources from the export of revolution.

Clifford proposes that the United States announce the beginning of a withdrawal—100,000 men—this year. His article was written before President Nixon announced an initial 25,000-man withdrawal.

The United States "should make clear this is not an isolated action, but the beginning of a process under which all U.S. ground combat forces will have been withdrawn from Vietnam by the end of 1970," he says.

Clifford says "orders should be issued to our military commanders to discontinue efforts to apply maximum pressure on the enemy, and to seek instead to reduce the level of combat." The maximum pressure policy, he says, has resulted in high U.S. casualties "without discernible impact on the peace negotiations in Paris."

$28,000 Dental Hygiene Cut Protested by Kingston Teachers

KINGSTON
Protesting a $28,000 cut in the Kingston Schools Dental Hygiene program, about 50 members of the Kingston Teachers Federation were on hand here Wednesday night for the 1969-70 budget hearing of the district's Board of Education.

The teachers, led by Robert Tucker, called for the dropping of other items in the budget rather than the dental program and suggested the elimination of some $15,000 in conference funds as one means of offsetting the $13.7-million budget.

Fewer than 150 persons were in attendance in the George Washington School to hear the board's budget. The meeting, the only legal requirement of the board in presentation of the budget to taxpayers before its adoption, was called "quiet" by chairman Harold E. Keator. Keator said the meeting ran almost two hours shorter than last year.

The teachers had listed a total suggested reduction of $150,000 in the record budget to offset retention of the dental program in a news release before the meeting.

The Board of Education had cited "a strenuous effort to hold the line" on budget costs. "Wherever possible," said the board, "economies are affected."

The teachers also attacked salaries of administrators of the schools, noting that raises given top administration personnel were, in some cases, 10 per cent higher than those given teachers and clerical workers.

Tucker cited the case of the secretary to Superintendent Dr. W. Wendell Hoover, saying "it is a disgraceful thing" that the salary of the secretary is apparently up $1,000 over last year's. At the same time, said Tucker, "common talk" around the school district indicates that secretaries bargaining collectively are being offered $75 a year increase.

Keator replied that the talks included an anticipated cut in state aid, that Keator said would have given the school $325,000 had it not been reduced by the Albany legislators. An expected loss in state aid on transportation was also noted by Keator. The rate had been at 90 per cent, but he said new legislation cut that amount to 56 per cent. He said it would be reflected in the 1970-71 budget as the state is a year behind on transportation aid.

Research and development of the school programs was another area cited by teachers as a place from which to save money rather than cutting the dental program.

Tucker asked the board how it could consider research and development of programs while at the same time it was cutting programs in Russian and Latin. Dr. Hoover commented that the two language programs were suffering from a lack of student approval and said "attendance was dropping" in both.

Keator noted that the tax rates for the district would not be available until at least September. Of the $13,713,069 about half or $6,660,229 would have to be raised by local taxes. Problems cited by the board included an anticipated cut in state aid, that Keator said would have given the school $325,000 had it not been reduced by the Albany legislators. An expected loss in state aid on transportation was also noted by Keator. The rate had been at 90 per cent, but he said new legislation cut that amount to 56 per cent. He said it would be reflected in the 1970-71 budget as the state is a year behind on transportation aid.

Looking to the future, Dr. Hoover commented that the need for more secondary school classrooms would be the next demand on the Board of Education.

On the question of constant rising costs in transportation, the board said "its going to get worse." Keator said the cuts in state aid plus newly signed yearly increases were the main contracts that call for higher yearly increases were the main problem.

Disclosed in Final Testimony

Could Have Saved 3 of the 74 Who Drowned

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (UPI) — Three of the 74 U.S. Navy men who went down with the bow of the Frank E. Evans could have been saved had rescuers gotten to them in time.

Royal Australian navy Capt. John P. Stevenson made the disclosure today in his final testimony before a six-man board investigating the collision June 3 of his aircraft carrier, the Melbourne, and the Evans, South China Sea.

The captain said the Australian sailors in the lifeboat were so upset over losing the American that they needed sedation when they returned to the carrier.

The board of U.S. and Australian officers gave Stevenson a final chance to report on the rescue phase of the tragedy before allowing him to leave for Singapore, where the Melbourne is undergoing repairs to its bow.

Five hours after the predawn collision, when he was able to leave the bridge and check on the Evans' survivors, Stevenson ordered them given a can of beer apiece and had the Melbourne's band play for them.

"It was a bit incongruous but it seemed to lighten the situation," said the skipper, who has blamed the Evans for turning into the Melbourne and causing the collision.

Stevenson said he had turned down a request from the destroyer's captain, Cmdr. Albert S. McLeone of Vallejo, Calif., to return to the aft section of the Evans because he was injured and in shock.

The Australian captain said many of his men risked their lives to save the Evans' survivors, including two who jumped from the carrier's flight deck to the deck of the Evans moments after the impact.

He said the search for survivors continued until "There was no possibility that anyone was possible."

Court Order Again Postpones Slashes in Welfare Payments

NEW YORK (UPI)—Proposed slashes in welfare payments which were scheduled to go into effect statewide July 1 have again been postponed by a court order.

Federal Court Judge Jack Weinstein issued a permanent injunction against the state cuts ruling in Brooklyn Wednesday that they were in violation of a federal law that calls for increases on the same date.

The state is expected to appeal the ruling in the U. S. Court of Appeals. The suit was brought against the state April 19 by eight welfare recipients in New York City and two in Nassau County.

The cuts were mandated by the state legislature which voted to change the law to a flat grant system of welfare payments from the old system of paying for individual items to welfare families.

In his ruling, Weinstein attacked the flat grant system as a "subterfuge to enact drastic cuts in both the standard of need and the level of payments."

He said the state had imposed the new system "to meet the exigencies of the state budget in violation of the congressional mandate."

The State Supreme Court issued an injunction against the cuts once before—but a State Court of Appeals ruling overturned that decision.

Council Expected to Approve The UR Development Hearing

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON Kingston Common Council will meet tonight in special session to set the legal wheels in motion for the first private redevelopment of the Broadway East Urban Renewal area.

The aldermen are expected to approve a resolution calling for a public hearing to give notice of the availability of land for redevelopment and specifically, the approval of Perennial Homes Inc. as qualified and eligible developers.

Perennial Homes Inc. of Long Island is expected to build seven, single family attached homes in what is known as Parcel 16 in the urban renewal area. Parcel 16, a one-acre tract, is bordered by Newkirk, Maple and Murray Streets.

Gerald Marqusee, president of Perennial Homes, has been meeting with urban renewal officials on the project for the past six months. The homes will be FHA-financed through a local bank, First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kingston.

Prices on the homes will be in the $14,000 to $16,000 range with mortgages to make it possible for persons of lower income to purchase them.

The public hearing, if authorized by the Council tonight, will be held on June 30 in the Council chambers.

The Council will meet in regular session on July 1, and if all goes as expected, will give the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency permission to sell the land to Marqusee.

James G. Connors, executive director of the urban renewal agency, said today that if the Council approves the sale of the land on July 1 it could be delivered to the developer by July 15.

Plans and specifications are completed on the development and it is expected that Perennial Homes could go into construction in the latter part of July.

The reconstruction of Broadway East has been in process for over two years with the erection of Rondout Gardens by the Kingston Housing Authority. In addition, the urban renewal agency has a number of contracts out for the improvement of sewage and water lines in the Broadway East area. A Broadway near The Freeman waterfront park at the foot of office is in the final stages.

On-Site Inspection Held at Perrine's

RIFTON Ulster County Park Commissioners joined Perrine's Bridge Committee members this morning for an inspection of the proposed minipark site at the approach to the historic Rifton covered bridge.

The on-site inspection party grew out of a joint meeting last night when plans were discussed to establish a county park at the approach to the recently restored bridge.

Application to the federal government for additional matching funds for a county park at that location has been made and plans are underway to follow up the request.

Attorney Sherwood Davis has been authorized by the Perrine's Bridge Committee to draw up the necessary papers for the transfer of title of the property offered by the Culinary Society on the Town of Esopus side of the bridge. Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. has offered the use of the property on the Town of Rosendale side of the historic bridge and further negotiations are to be taken before the minipark can be established.

Meanwhile plans are being finalized for the formal dedication of the bridge 3 p. m. Sunday, June 29. It is expected that many local dignitaries will attend the colorful ceremonies.

Dedication of the structure is the culmination of more than 20 years of effort on the part of many local people. Now that the covered bridge has been restored, the project continues to surge forth with plans for the park.

Attending the meeting Wednesday night at the Ulster County Office Building were members of the Ulster County Park Commission, the county park committee and the Perrine's Bridge Committee.

Taking part in the discussion were Richard Nace, Stirling Potter, Samuel Perry, Mel Mones, William Edelmuth, Eugene Corey and Brian White of the county legislature; Joseph Benjamin, committeeman; Harry Snyder, Town of Rosendale councilman; Michael Perry of the park commission; Attorney Davis; Kenneth Clark, Elmer Carney, Thomas Orr and John Grady of the Perrine's Bridge Committee.

Ask Legislature To Establish Roads Program

KINGSTON The Ulster County Legislature is being asked along with other neighboring legislatures to establish a scenic roads program.

The request is being made by Regional Chamber of Commerce which at its regular meeting recently in Wurtsboro, resolved to contact the legislative bodies of the counties of Ulster, Orange, Rockland and Sullivan concerning the matter. The action followed the New York State Natural Beauty Commission's urging of scenic road committees in each county and the designation of scenic areas and sites along public highways.

The chamber maintains that it would be the first step in the protection and maintenance of such scenic areas and sites which it states are the prime component of the tourism potential of the area.

The Regional Chamber of Commerce Council is an organization dedicated to the economic well-being of the counties of Orange, Passaic, Pike, Rockland, Sullivan, Sussex and Ulster.

Town of Lloyd Mobilizes In Search for Physician

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

HIGHLAND Representatives of community organizations, clubs and fraternities in the Town of Lloyd met here, recently to formulate plans and procedures to expedite their search for medical assistance in the Highland area.

The Town of Lloyd Medical Procurement Committee has extended its search to hundreds of medical institutions throughout the nation, but to date has received few indications of interest by practicing physicians. At its meeting, June 4, the committee determined that its most urgent requirement would be to raise the financial resources needed to carry out its work and to enlist increased support in this effort from a broad base of community groups.

At the present time, only two medical doctors are practicing in the township, and one of them is quite elderly and would like to retire. There are, however, medical services available in the nearby Village of New Paltz and across the Hudson River in Poughkeepsie.

It was pointed out by Peter

Roumelis, the committee's chairman that to date some 565 hospitals, medical associations and medical schools, have been contacted by the committee, and at least six doctors had visited Highland and expressed an interest to locate in the area.

Roumelis said that the committee has also done some advertising, noting that ads had been placed in the New York Times and in one medical journal.

"It must be the responsibility of the community actively working through dedicated groups," he said.

The committee agreed to set up a sub-committee to concentrate on fund-raising and also to issue a well publicized call for its next meeting on July 10.

Aaron E. Klein has been Ulster County Democratic County Chairman before. He wants to take the reins again.

State Committeeman James T. McCardle also wants to run the Party. And he says bring forth a new brand of politics. Both men will have their chance at the top spot next Monday night when a Democratic County meeting is held at the Municipal Auditorium to elect a chairman to replace Dr. Gerald P. Gorman who does not seek another term.

Both men agree that the party needs a shot in the arm, especially on the county and state level where there is a conspicuous absence of Democratic office holders.

Klein and McCardle, each with a fair sized following, and both experienced in the political arena, have fairly definite ideas on moving the party forward.

Speaking constructively, rather than dwelling on past mistakes, they expressed their views in interviews with the Freeman this week.
Klein, who was county chairman from 1963 to 1967, also served the city of Kingston as both Democratic City chairman and City Judge. McCardle, a supervisor from 1958-1963, ran unsuccessfully for state senator in 1960. He too is a former city chairman.

Klein Favors Reconstitution Of Party Executive Committee

"The Democratic Party isn't going anywhere without added strength," states Klein. He would give it that strength by reconstituting the executive committee to provide it with a broader base. He also suggests the committee meet monthly in various locations throughout the country.

Klein says he would involve more women and young people in the party. "They are a ready resource for specific types of help," Klein said he would institute some new innovations.

Among them would be the establishment of a full-time office for the party which would be open particularly in the daytime for use by the chairman and committeemen.

An Added Voice
He would institute a bi-monthly periodical to be circulated among committeemen, alerting them to the issues of the day, the political calendar, meetings and party affairs. It would also serve as an added voice for the chairman.

Klein also advocates a strong financial committee which would improve fund-raising techniques and perhaps get away from "prosaic dinners" and go in for more interesting and remunerative projects such as an auction or flea market.

He envisions a professional full or part-time public relations person to "bring our message to the community in a professional and a continuous way." Klein thinks that such service is needed for the weaker party which does not have the sounding board of the county legislature. "Such a person would also be helpful with fund-raising and campaign planning, he suggested.

Of women party workers, Klein said he felt there is a need to encourage them to be candidates as well as workers. He noted that women office holders from the national level down are diminishing.

Of the young people and their role in the Democratic Party, Klein favors the "Young Democratic" group as a launching pad to the parent organization. He maintains that the young people should be taken into the organization where they feel most comfortable and generally that is among their peers with whom they share such events as dances, sporting events and public forums.

"They can work their way into the main organization by degrees," adding that "the things young people gravitate to, they have a fervor for."

Of his own candidacy, Klein feels that in the past few years a number of Democrats have been staying in the background and that his election as chairman would bring them forward again.

As county chairman he would have "an on-going program without let-up, not just at election time."

Need for Leadership
Generally speaking, he says, "there is a need for leadership, for communication. Part of today's failure is the failure to involve committeemen to the fullest extent and capability."

"If the party keeps moving at all times, there will be a greater sense of the desires to serve."

Klein added he feels that with a reconstituted executive committee, a paid publicist, the help of the news media and a working committee of the executive committee, the spark and the fuel for such involvement will be forthcoming.

Although Klein's main theme of his campaign has been the revitalization of the county committee, he has remained strong in opposing the reorganization recommendations of Theodore Sorenson, former aide to the late President John F. Kennedy. He has promised to fight the Sorenson plan which he describes as "a naked grab for complete control of the party and its machinery."

McCardle Would Make Party More Attractive to Young

JAMES T. MCCARDLE

"The response of the young people to my candidacy has been terrific!" says McCardle.

"There are bright young people standing in the wings ready to do the necessary work," he adds, predicting that his election will bring "new faces" in the Democratic scene.

Not that the political old-timers would be neglected. "We need their wisdom," McCardle cautions. "They have contributed much over the years and have schooled persons like myself."

In addition to new programs, what he envisions mainly is following up on the Kennedy, McCarthy and Dyson campaigns, all of which gained considerable support from the young. "We need to make and keep the party more attractive to them," he adds, "if we are going to move ahead."

McCardle suggests several ways of accomplishing it, one of which includes the establishment within the county committee of a youth activities coordinator to direct the activities of the party at the two local colleges. He said that hopefully, such a leader will come from Ulster County's present Young Democrat organization.

McCardle also advocates the expansion of the county committee to allow for more than two committeemen per district. The law allows an additional committeeman be added on a proportional vote representation.

"We need this to broaden the party base and make room for the young people," he suggests.

McCardle would also restructure the executive committee, which until now has had appointed members. Saying such positions are positions of esteem, and should be elected by town committeemen, he suggests that the committee's makeup consist of 54 members, one for each legislative post (there are 33) plus each of the 21 town chairmen.

A new innovation for the Ulster Democrats is also suggested by McCardle. He wants to see the creation of a permanent, year-round headquarters. "The party has been beholden to individuals for the use of their private offices for too long," he said. "The committeemen need a place to go with someone on duty at all times. A meeting room is also needed for the county legislators."

It's about time they stood up, took charge and said what they want done."
Of his own availability in his potential role as chairman, McCardle stated, that this has never been a problem in 12 years. "There was never a question of my availability when I was a supervisor," he said. "There was never a question when I ran for the State Senate, when I was city chairman and as state committeeman. People have always been able to get me when they want to," he concluded.

Talking about party finances, McCardle said the party's biggest fault, when it comes to fund raising, is that it waits to the last two months before election. He suggests that the party plan its finances over a year's time and that the executive committee be responsible for planning events. When asked what type of events he contemplated, McCardle said he would let the committee decide. "I don't want to dictate what they will be. It's their organization."

Two-Way Street
Speaking of the relationship of the chairman and committeemen, McCardle says it is a two-way street but, "without motivation from the top, there is no incentive... committeemen won't work if they are faced with lackadaisical or ivory tower leadership at the top... they want a chairman who will get involved in their problems."

Rockefeller to Bring President Paraguay's Foreign Aid Request

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — President Alfredo Stroessner's military regime has prepared a whopping foreign aid request for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to take back to President Nixon.

Rockefeller arrives this afternoon for a 23-hour visit to this land-locked Latin American nation of two million persons. He is scheduled to meet Friday with Stroessner.

Prepared Memorandum
Stroessner, who took power in 1954, presides over Latin America's oldest dictatorship. He has prepared a memorandum for Rockefeller asking for $115 million in long-term loans to build roads, modernize the national railroad system, construct a ground station for satellite communications and improve public health facilities. He also wants special allowances for sugar and tung oil exports to the United States.

Paraguay, among Latin America's poorest nations, receives $35 million in foreign aid a year, mostly from the United States. Its economy is in bad shape because its imports exceed exports. Last year the deficit was a record $13.9 million.

Rockefeller's visit here promises to be one of the most tranquil on his current tour. Violence has broken out in many of the 11 countries he has visited on a fact-finding mission for Nixon.

Two rival political parties that were allowed to participate in elections for the first time last year have voted to abstain from official ceremonies for Rockefeller. But all groups, including 6,000 university students, have said Rockefeller the individual will be welcome.

The New York governor currently is winding up a three-day visit to Brazil, where stringent military security kept the lid on any outbreaks. Rockefeller was in Sao Paulo Wednesday, where he visited the Museum of Modern Art and met with professors, students and teachers.

This third leg of Rockefeller's Latin-American mission ends Saturday in Uruguay, where students and workers have threatened strikes and demonstrations.

Uruguayan students protesting the Rockefeller visit tossed Molotov cocktails at the Foreign Ministry Wednesday, then tangled with police who waded in to make arrests. There were no immediate reports on injuries.

A HEARTY GOODBYE — New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller (L) says goodbye to Brazilian Foreign Minister Magalhães Pinto before leaving Rio de Janeiro, Brazil for Sao Paulo, the third city on his Brazilian itinerary. Before Rockefeller had left Rio, he received a pledge from Brazil's military-backed government that constitutional democracy will soon be returned to the largest Latin American country. Muskie Urges Fresh Approach to Viet War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie has urged President Nixon to take a new initiative toward ending the Vietnam war by proposing a cease-fire.

The Maine Democrat said in an interview though he supports peace efforts being made by the President, the time has come for a fresh approach.

Additionally, the 1968 vice presidential nominee said, a proposal by former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford to withdraw 100,000 troops this year from Vietnam "would show that we are really serious about negotiations."

But Muskie said, "I think the President should propose a cease-fire. It would involve some risks, of course, but if we are ever going to end the war we will have to take risks.

"Each side would regard it risky to stop fighting. The Viet Cong would be likely to regard it as diminishing its influence in any settlement and Saigon might think it would downgrade its political position.

"But if the President offered a cease-fire, it would put the monkey on the backs of the Communists and might prod them to move forward in the Paris talks.

Muskie said the withdrawal of 25,000 American troops seems to have had little or no effect on Hanoi's intransigence at Paris.

But he added that he is not arm-chair general and it is difficult to know how many troops could be pulled out under present conditions.

Muskie conceded search and destroy missions might be necessary to hold down casualties sustained by U.S. troops if they fought only on the defensive. However, he said what he is interested in is holding fighting to a level that will not dilute the credibility of American peace overtures.

Clifford said in an article in the quarterly Foreign Affairs, that all American ground troops should be removed from the war zone by the end of 1970.

President Nixon has promised some decision on this in August, but any additional move to withdraw more Americans seems to depend primarily on how South Vietnamese forces perform in the meantime.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who has called for de-escalation of the war, said he expects additional withdrawals but doubts they will be on the scale proposed by Clifford.

"I think there will be announcements every two or three months of more troops returning," he said. "It could be possible, of course, that there would be as many as 100,000 returned by some time next year."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., joined in Clifford's criticism of the Saigon government. The former Pentagon chief said Saigon authorities calculated the longer the war continued the fewer concessions they would have to make to rival political groups.

Military men generally believe that American casualties would mount if U.S. troops assumed a defensive stance.

House Will Not Bargain With Powell

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders hope to avoid a possibly embarrassing court test by convincing Adam Clayton Powell not to fight for $55,000 in back pay, but they have made it clear there will be no bargaining with the Harlem Democrat.

The leaders, Democrats alike, are concerned a court decision favoring Powell would produce the uninspiring spectacle of Congress defying the law by refusing to pay up.

In its decision Monday that Powell was illegally excluded from his seat two years ago, the Supreme court said his claim for back pay would have to be decided by a lower court.

Although eager to avoid a trial and its consequences, the leaders decided at a meeting Wednesday there would be no offers of partial payment, or return of Powell's seniority, or restoration of his chairmanship of the House Education and Labor Committee.

The session was called to discuss the situation and to prepare for a meeting with Powell, who sent word he wanted to talk to Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass. McCormack and the other leaders stayed ready for the confrontation all day, but Powell never showed up.

Powell, at a news conference after his court triumph, indicated he might not press the pay fight. It would be up to his lawyers, he said, and presumably he was meeting with them while the House was huddling with its lawyers Wednesday.

The fact is, if he chooses to fight, there will be retaliatory action to get back some of the money the House charged Powell with misappropriating in refusing to seat him.

A resolution to deduct such sums from Powell's pay has been prepared by Rep. Bob Casey, D-Tex., who said he would introduce it as soon as additional cosponsors have had a chance to sign up.

Powell is already having $25,000 taken out of his pay in monthly installments under the terms of the resolution that permitted him to take his seat in the present Congress.

The House hopes the dual threat of such retaliatory action and the possibility of an unsavory clash between the Congress and the courts will persuade Powell to settle for the satisfaction of having won his main point—that Congress had no right to deprive him of his seat.

They hope it will be in a spirit of forgive and forget, let bygones be bygones, that Powell will meet with them. It remains to be seen.

Antismoking Bloc Looms in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bill banning government crack-downs on cigarette advertising bounced today from a resounding House victory to largely a hostile Senate.

A strong Senate antismoking bloc was poised to snuff out the measure to rewrite it to include mandatory health warnings on all cigarette commercials. If no bill is passed, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) would be free to proceed with regulations which—according to the tobacco industry—would end all cigarette advertising.

The measure, passed by the House Wednesday, would extend for six more years the present ban on government regulation of cigarette advertising. It also would strengthen the warning on ever cigarette package.

The bill sailed through the House on a voice vote after a motion to send it back to committee was defeated 252-137. But in contrast to the House, where tobacco state lawmakers were smoothly organized, the pro-cigarette forces in the Senate were in disarray.

Tobacco state senators admitted privately they had no strategy and no leader.

Senate Commerce Committee members had few kind words for the measure.

"That six year extension is just far too long without any voluntary action by all concerned," said Senate Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash.

Cigarette packages are required to carry this statement: "Caution: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

Under the House bill, the package warning would read: "Warning: The surgeon general has determined that cigarette packages, advertisements and commercials would be required to include this message: 'Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and other diseases.' Cigarette manufacturers have testified they would stop advertising rather than knock their own product so harshly.

The FCC has proposed a ban on all television and radio advertising of cigarettes.

Disorders' Light Toll

Compared to the toll of civil strife in 114 nations surveyed, the rate of American deaths in civil disorders in the 1960s is infinitesimal. That finding by the National Commission on Violence, surprising as it may be, nevertheless decried the use of violence as the ultimate solution to social violence.

In the five years before mid-1968, there were 220 Americans who died in civil strife, a rate of 1.1 per million population. That compared with the average of 238 deaths per million for all nations. And it was less than half the 2.4 per million average in Europe.

However, the United States led the 17 Western democracies in the total magnitude of strife and its unusual frequency and duration, while six of these democracies had higher rates of participation, including Belgium, France and Italy.

The writers of the report—Hugh Davis Graham of John Hopkins and Ted Robert Gurr of Princeton conclude that "Americans have always been a violent people but the 1960s rank as one of our most violent eras."

They point out that, in addition to the black-white urban confrontations, there were antiwar protests, university unrest and "the chilling recent contagion of political murders of national leaders."

All of which unfortunately is true. But civil strife has been much less disruptive here than in foreign lands. We have experienced no internal wars as some other nations. No effective revolutionary conspiracies and terrorism have been able to shake us. Paradoxically, we have both a tumultuous people and a stable republic.

It isn't because foreign enemies have not stirred up and made the most of various disorders. The vast majority have stood firm against civil strife. God willing, good Americans of all races will continue to do so.

Will It Fight Inflation?

Will the prime rate of 8½ per cent which banks across the country suddenly invoked help or hinder inflation? Isn't that the big question now?

At some point, the costs of money must dampen inflation. The question is, will this record interest rate do it? Or will it be a symbol of another credit crunch that will bring those willing to pay such high rates into the market to head off more inflation cost?

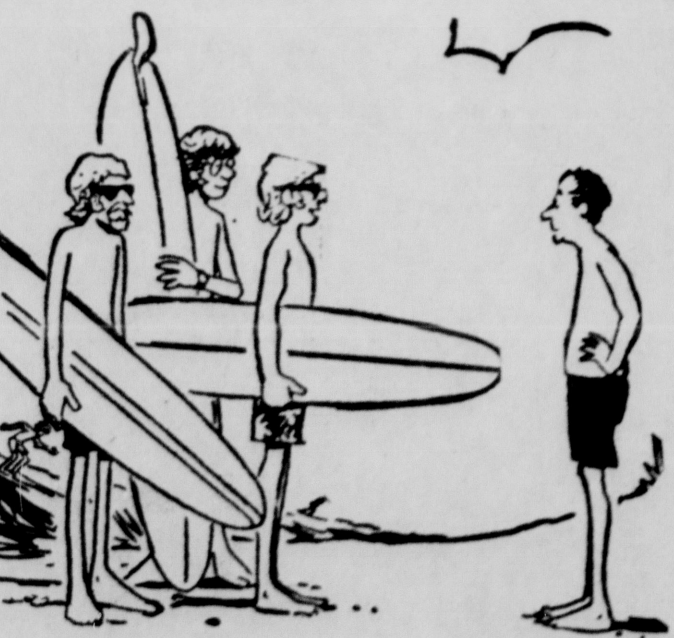

It is not an easy question to answer, not in the view of the recent history of finance. Previous raises in interest rates to historically high levels did not slow inflation. If anything, they added to it, as businessmen added the cost of money to the process and passed it off to the consumer.

But, as we said at the start, there must be a point at which the cost of money will deter people from borrowing, and then it will slow inflation. Shrinking funds, together with the high interest rate, should stop the empire builders. They will have to worry about whether the return they get on such high-priced money will be worth the risk. That is when inflation may take the blow.

One unlooked for reaction is that of some corporate borrowers. They are in the tax bracket that requires them to divide their profits with the government. So they figure their prime rate, not at 8½ per cent, but at 4½ per cent. That sounds very attractive. But interest comes out before taxes. Isn't it naive to regard it as shared with government? It affects profits first, taxes later.

High interest, scarce money, reduced profits add up to: look ahead carefully. But the best way to prevent a rapid and disastrous change is to operate normally and wisely, not from panic.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Yes, sir! We KNOW this is private San Clemente beach —we're your Secret Service men!"

"I Still Say It's Just Baby Fat!"

David Lawrence Says Tampering With Economy Concerns Businessmen

WASHINGTON — Businessmen who are trying to do planning — either long-range or short-range — are having a hard time. They really don't know how much tampering with the economy the government is going to do. They read about efforts to "curb inflation." They see the interest rates for loans going up and up. They wonder whether the government itself knows how far it can move without precipitating a recession what will be painful.

The House Ways and Means Committee has just voted to recommend a repeal of the seven per cent investment tax credit, and also has approved an extension of the income-tax surcharge of 10 per cent. Corporations that have been relying upon the investment credit will have to complete projects that are underway, but the durable-goods industries probably will feel the impact of the loss of the seven per cent tax credit on certain expenditures for new equipment.

The continuance of the income-tax surcharge, on the other hand, is not likely to be harmful because the planning for this year and next has been based on the assumption that current tax rates will be maintained. Unfortunately, there is no machinery for measuring coincidentally day by day the way economic factors are working. Usually statistics come in a month or two later when already some other developments may have occurred to affect the trend in another way.

Broadly speaking, businessmen are deeply concerned about the future. They may condemn inflation in theory but, on the whole, they think it is far better to function under a slow cure from month to month than to precipitate a period of "recession" or "depression." For both these terms imply damage to a large part of the economy, and it takes a long time to bring a recovery.

Again and again in past years reliance has been placed on the Federal Reserve Board's power to move interest rates upward and thus prevent an undue increase of borrowing. But, unfortunately, when many of the projects involved in a national economy with a gross national product of more than 900 billion dollars are directly affected, there is a risk that expansion plans will to a substantial extent be deferred and current projects reduced in volume.

Inflation is a bad thing, but attempts to cure it by drastic or ill-timed measures can sometimes be worse. When interest rates, for instance, are moved upward, many worthy programs which have not been a part of the current inflationary movement are interfered with, and the country's growth on the business side begins to be stunted.

Lots of monetary complications in the international field arise, too. Export and import trade are affected as well as American investments in foreign countries. To put it another way, if the United States really slows down its economy, the rest of the world will feel the effects, and there is always a chance that serious results may follow in countries which are not as well equipped to weather and economic or monetary storm.

Nobody is really able to manage the national economy — not even the government. For once the machinery is adjusted to a certain pace, it is not always possible to hold the slowdown under control.

The big question is whether public confidence can be maintained while the government tries various forms of restraint. For, in a credit "crunch," public confidence does begin to weaken, stock and bond prices fall to a low level, and there is a stagnation in housing and other kinds of construction.

When brakes are applied by government, there are inevitable interruptions to plans involving billions of dollars a year. Economists can only guess whether these painful shocks can be absorbed while business as a whole nevertheless maintains a reasonable profit.

Up till now, there are no signs of a breakdown. But the amount of worrying being done by businessmen is steadily increasing. Costs are rising as wages go up. Fortunately, the two measures about to be adopted by Congress — namely, repeal of the seven per cent investment credit, and extension of the income-tax surcharge — undoubtedly will be taken in stride by businessmen.

Continued Space Program Is Vital to U.S. Well-Being

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The upcoming historic U.S. landing on the moon will force the United States to make one of this decade's great decisions:

Where are we going in space and how much of our national resources in men and money are we going to spend?

The question has already been raised. As with military spending, and the opposition to the antiballistic missile system, it is questioned whether continued heavy spending on space is the best use of our funds — when this nation is faced with such major problems in poverty, disease, the slums and racial inequality.

From the bits and pieces of data available on the Soviet space programs, it is already clear Moscow has made its decision. Russia will push ahead on a strong schedule. And, where science is concerned, the Russians have up to now proven themselves hard-headed, not about to throw a ruble where it is not needed.

The decisions the United States makes on its space program may determine the future of the United States in the world.

This reporter has come to the conclusion that a drastic cutback in the after-the-moon space program could injure the social program advances in health, poverty, unemployment and opportunities for minorities.

Most social scientists and most of those in minority and poverty groups this reporter has talked to agree that a major indispensable requirement in improving the lot of the Negro and the slum dweller is to develop more jobs and better jobs and the education to enable the underprivileged to fill these jobs.

Economic data indicates it is those companies and industries which have spent the most on research that have expanded most rapidly and provided the greatest numbers of new jobs. If that money had been spent directly on aid, instead of research, it may be that poverty and unemployment would be greater today.

Space is opening up some very real man-helping programs. Manned space flight, for example, has been a major element in the stimulus back of the rapid development of computer technology which has resulted in the astounding expansion of the computer industry.

Now the computer industry grosses $20 billion a year and provides jobs for 800,000 Americans. That's one of every 100 jobs in the United States.

If the programs are not canceled for want of funds, in a few years satellites will be able to measure the snow cover and the rate of snow melting in our mountains, thus predict water runoff well before it occurs. This will make it possible to prevent dangerous floods here and abroad. Through the proper control of water runoff at dams it will make possible tens and perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars a year in electric power costs.

Satellite crop watchers will be able to catch diseases in their infancy, save untold acres of grains and other crops each year, preventing starvation in many developing countries.

These are but samples of many promising programs that will more than pay their way once the development costs are funded. These programs and the techniques developed will have direct and indirect application to the bettering of life in the United States and abroad.

If man constantly challenges himself beyond his limits with solving new problems in science, and space is one of the major frontiers of science, then these changes in turn will revolutionize our lives for the better.

As these new concepts are applied, there will be a demand for more men (employment) and for men with better skills (education).

We will not be able to afford slums, dropouts or prejudice on the job, for these mean a waste in manpower. In such a developing age, manpower will become increasingly tight.

Drew Pearson Says Senate Missed Burger Real Estate Deal in Their Rush

WASHINGTON — A real estate deal involving Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has just come to light, which illustrates why the Senate should not have rushed his confirmation through with such breakneck speed.

If the stacked Senate Judiciary Committee had given Burger a fraction of the same scrutiny it gave retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren or his proposed predecessor, Abe Fortas, it would have discovered that the new Chief Justice, while a member of the Court of Appeals, was linked with the lobbyist for the National Automobile Dealers Association in a real estate venture.

Furthermore, the Senators would have discovered that the property involved was slum property, a building at 901 East Capitol Street. The lobbyist, Rowland Kirks, apparently having established something of a reputation as a result of his partnership with Justice Burger, went on to develop a long list of other real estate deals. And one of the questions which the Senate should have asked the new Chief Justice was whether he was a silent partner in any of these deals.

Instead the Senate Judiciary Committee held only one hour and 40 minutes of friendly cross-questioning of Burger, compared with two months consideration of Chief Justice Earl Warren. The committee then spent five minutes considering Burger's qualifications.

Earlier, both Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Republican Leader Dirksen of Illinois had promised careful scrutiny of all future Supreme Court justices. Sen. Mansfield promised that the Senate would end the usual practice of "almost automatic acceptance" of Presidential nominees.

Sketchy FBI Check

A few days later, this talk about careful scrutiny vanished in thin smoke. Various Senators, led by Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas, urged that Burger's confirmation go over for a couple of days to permit careful consideration. They were outvoted. Sen. Mansfield, who voted for a quickie vote, alleged that the investigation had been done before the Senate hearing, presumably by the FBI.

Obviously, however, the FBI didn't make much of a check. As one Senator remarked: "The FBI couldn't follow the tracks of an elephant in the snow when a reactionary judge is involved."

Had the FBI done even the most superficial checking, it would have found from D.C. real estate records for 1964 that Burger and Rowland Kirks had purchased a building at 901 East Capitol Street from Dr. Myron Drapen. The FBI would have found that Justice Burger paid $47,000 in on lump sum for the property, by check drawn on a Minnesota bank.

If the Senate had not been hellbent for immediate confirmation, it should have asked the new Chief Justice how he was able to raise immediate cash to the tune of $47,000 and whether anyone helped him raise this rather large sum of money. No mortgage was taken on the house.

Automobile litigation frequently comes before the U.S. Supreme Court, and presumably there will be more of it now that Congress has passed automobile safety legislation. Kirks was the registered lobbyist for the Automobile Dealers, now represents the American Textile Manufacturers Institute. Textile matters also come before the Supreme Court.

Tricky Trade

The FBI, if it had done any real checking, would have found that one year after Burger and lobbyist Kirks purchased the East Capitol Street property in 1964 they sold it to Kenneth Strawberry, a State Department official. The real estate stamps filed with the District of Columbia indicate that the price was $38,000. In other words, Burger and Kirks paid $47,000 for a piece of property, then sold it for $38,000 — a loss of $9,000 after paying for renovation and repairs. Who absorbed the loss? Or was it a real estate trade, which would have avoided taxes? These are questions the Senate should have asked.

Mr. Strawberry immediately put a mortgage of $40,000 on the building as against the $38,000 price he paid. This indicated that the property must have been worth around $60,000 to $70,000, for banks normally lend 60 to 70 per cent value on a house.

There may have been absolutely nothing wrong with Burger's real estate deal, even though other judges — notably Chief Judge David Bazelon and Justice Skelly Wright of the Court of Appeals, together with Supreme Court Justice William Brennan — have decided to pull out of a real estate venture in which no lobbyists were involved. There was a straight building development at Concord Village, Va., where they were associated, not with lobbyists but with former U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg and Sen. Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut.

But for its own protection and as the protector for the public and for the protection of Judge Burger, the Senate should have cleared up the facts before voting.

Lobbyist Kirks, when asked by this column about the facts, said he would consult with Judge Burger and then call back. Subsequently he confirmed the above real estate transaction, in general terms, though stating that he and Burger had paid $37,000, not $47,000. However, the real estate stamps on record in the District of Columbia clearly indicate that the price was $47,000, and this figure was also confirmed by Dr. Myron Drapen, from whom Burger and Kirks purchased the property.

Kirks further stated that his relations with Justice Burger "except for this one transaction have been purely social; we have never been associated in any other financial transaction. I have never appeared in any case in the U.S. Court of Appeals since he has been on the bench."

Clifford the Dove

Former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford went through many qualms before telling the story of how he was converted from a hawk to a dove.

Clifford's chief worry was hurting his old friend and chief, President Lyndon Johnson.

After Clifford first spoke before a group in New York where he told of his conversion, Sen. Fulbright asked him to testify before the Foreign Relations Committee along the same line. But Clifford specified that his testimony be in closed-door session for fear of hurting President Johnson.

As an unofficial adviser to Johnson, Clifford had urged him to prosecute the Vietnam war up to the hilt. Along with Abe Fortas, he was one of LBJ's chief hawk advisers.

But when Clifford got into the Pentagon as Secretary of Defense and came face to face with Vietnam problems, he became the chief force for peace inside the Cabinet.

FOR ONE THING I CAN'T STAND A GUY WHO'S ALWAYS ORDERING PEOPLE AROUND!

Henry J. Taylor Says Blackball From Red Hungary

VIENNA, Austria: This writer was honored here by an official blackball from Red Hungary. And what good luck that the ax fell while I was still outside Hungary!

"Come to Hungary," say the posters planted in the Western world. "Welcome to visitors. See Hungary's beauty. See the joy. Join the happy life."

The Red government sorely needs hard currencies, and the pitch for Western visitors is for the purpose of providing it.

IBUSZ, the Hungarian-Czechoslovakian-Rumanian-Bulgarian travel agency maintained by these Red governments, is the vehicle for garnering in the Western spenders. And in this innocent-looking establishment is where my episode started.

IBUSZ is prominently located here at Karntner Strasse 26 — an enticing, sugary bureau featuring blown-up photographs of smiling children ducking Papa in the Danube, joyful peasants sniffing flowers and harvesting Hungary's hops, carefree lovers strolling along Budapest's embankment and even a dead-ringer for Zsa Zsa Gabor in a bunny outfit posed with come-hither look. Not a policeman in sight. Who would ever know that Big Brother is watching? Yes, yes, come to Red Hungary.

The entrance visa "is routine," say the posters. The system, however, is interesting.

Little Miss Heidi Schultz, a Viennese, kindly put herself in charge of me when I walked into IBUSZ. "You can get a visa only here," she said, "just at IBUSZ, and only after paying IBUSZ for your Budapest hotel room in advance in Austrian shillings or your dollars. Everything in advance — and here. No Hungarian. Soviet-bloc or Russian money, please." The hotel reservations are controlled by Budapest's Communist party headquarters.

"But for how long a stay?" I asked. "How does anyone know what to pay?" "You must decide now. And IBUSZ cannot get your visa until Budapest issues your hotel reservations and the government knows where you will be."

I laid down $100. Phase 2 was an IBUSZ telegram to Budapest and, from Miss Schultz, a friendly goodbye. Then, behind the scenes, things began to thicken.

Telephone calls to Miss Schultz brought only her patient answer: "Nothing yet, call again." Then at 10 o'clock the other morning she gave me the word that Budapest had provided a reservation at the Gallert Hotel.

"Now you must come to IBUSZ and pay for your airplane ticket, and with your passport and two photographs and fill in the Hungarian papers."

Receiving my passport and two more photographs and the visa papers properly recorded in triplicate for IBUSZ to deliver to the Hungarian Embassy here, Miss Schultz sent me to the Osterreichisches Verkehrs-bureau, another agency, across town, for my ticket. It was 10:30. "Be back by 11:30," Miss Schultz said, "for your passport with the visa in it."

I was there — to find a dear, little Miss Schultz ashen gray. "Who are you?" she asked. "Who are you? IBUSZ has just had a telephone call from the Hungarian Embassy refusing the visa." I could only repeat to her my name. "Have you ever written critically of the Communist regime in Hungary?" she asked. I said yes, I had.

"They have a list," she whispered. "They keep it at hand all over the world. They watch everything. They never sleep. They know everything. And, so fast, that call just now. Two minutes and you were seen."

Little Viennese Miss Schultz gave what was unmistakably a little shudder. "But it's better it was in safe Vienna," she confided, "than if there was a mistake here and they caught up with the name after you were inside Hungary." And there was another shudder.

The Red Hungarian government, as in all Soviet satellite countries, has the unmitigated gall to claim freedom of information to the world press and parades the claim at our State Department and elsewhere.

American Ambassador to Austria Douglas MacArthur II, never a man to back away from a fight, has already protested this blackball to Hungarian Ambassador Jeno Simo here. Ambassador MacArthur got nothing but a runaround. And so did Francis Meehan, deputy chief of mission at the American Embassy in Budapest, in protesting my blackball to the Hungarian Foreign Office. Meehan reported to Ambassador MacArthur that the foreign minister refused to discuss it.

"But I'm glad it happened before I got here," said Meehan. "I don't know when he would ever have gotten out."

"Amen," agreed MacArthur. "Amen," said Meehan. "Amen," say I.

French Gallup Poll on Target In Estimating Pompidou Strength

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18—Further evidence that progress in polling in other nations of the world has kept pace with developments in the U.S. is seen in the performance of the French Institute of Public Opinion in predicting the vote of Georges Pompidou and Alain Poher in last Sunday's election.

In this election, the French Institute of Public Opinion, the Gallup Poll of France, established an accuracy record comparable to that of the American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) in last November's presidential election.

Both polls follow closely comparable procedures, and both (along with the Canadian Gallup Poll) can claim the most accurate polling records of the last year.

In Sunday's election in France, the French Institute of Public Opinion reported in the Paris press that 67 per cent of all French voters would go to the polls. Sixty-five per cent actually did vote.

The Institute reported this division of the vote for those who voted, which is compared with the actual election figures:

	Reported Actual	Saturday Actual	Deviation
Pompidou	58%	57.6%	.4
Poher	42%	42.4%	.4

The accuracy of these figures compares closely with the Gallup Poll's final pre-election report last November, which showed the following:

	Final Report	Election Result	Deviation
Nixon	43%	43.5%	.5
Humphrey	42%	42.9%	.9
Wallace	15%	13.6%	1.4

The U.S. Gallup Poll estimated that 63 per cent of voters would go to the polls. Sixty-four per cent actually did so.

* Based on a sample of the total civilian resident population of voting age, excluding aliens and inmates of correctional and mental institutions.

The Gallup Poll has conducted surveys in every presidential race since 1936, and in every off-year congressional race since 1938.

The average deviation from absolute accuracy in the last 8 national elections for the Gallop Poll has been only 1.4 percentage points.

Canadian Gallup Poll

The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) added to the laurels of the 26-nation Gallup International group during the last year. The final pre-election report of the Canadian Institute, published before the national election in that country a year ago, showed the Liberal party of Pierre Elliot Trudeau with 47 per cent of the vote to 29 per cent for the Progressive Conservative party, 18 per cent for the New Democratic party, and 6 per cent for other parties.

The Liberals won 46 per cent of the vote in the election, the Conservatives 31 per cent, the New Democratic party 17 per cent and the other parties 6 per cent.

Saugerties Town Dump

Editor, The Freeman:

While out riding on horseback along paths, which become rarer as time goes on in this ever growing neighborhood, I came across the newly "created" town dump of Saugerties.

Where there was lush growth of different kind of shrubs before, a feeding ground of deer and other kind of wildlife in an unspoiled stretch of scenery, bulldozers, one of the many curses of this age, had dug out a dismal looking pit of stone without bothering to cut the trees beforehand, but pushing them in typical, ruthless bulldozer-fashion, to the side of the pit, adding to the ugliness of it all.

Somebody already wrote about this a few days ago and among other things mentioned what this must mean to the people living nearby and the value of their property, which for some of them must have sunk to zero.

All this no doubt does not bother the previous owner of this land, who as long as I can remember, and this is about 25 years, has maintained, or consented to be maintained, a car dump on both sides of Route 212 on property belonging to him or having belonged to him.

Another mystery is that the utility poles of the Central Hudson Co. and the Telephone Co. are right in the midst of this hellhole and, once the garbage starts accumulating, I wonder how the respective repair crews can do their work there.

It is just unbelievable that for $800, the sum Saugerties owed Woodstock according to the papers for the use of their dump, can, most likely just to spite the Woodstock Town Board, create such a horror and cause unrepairable damage to surrounding and adjoining property of this dump.

I still hope, and I am convinced many, many more with me, that the Saugerties officials will come to their senses and put a stop to this while still possible. Woods and shrubs will grow again, the uprooted trees in time will be covered again and this sore spot returned to what it was before as a part of a lovely stretch of unspoiled country.

Yours sincerely,
KURT SLUIZER

Mental Health Gets Award for Many Services

KINGSTON—A service award has been received by Ulster County Association for Mental Health from Middletown State Hospital in recognition and appreciation of nine years' service to the mentally ill.

The service includes the monthly bus from the Kingston area to assist friends and family to visit the hospital or patients going on home-visits. The Association also arranges for patients to receive new greeting cards and stationery for their personal use, and cooperates with the Middletown Halfway House in Kingston.

The Halfway House, at 99 Clinton Avenue, is a sheltered residence for selected patients, and serves as a bridge on the way to full independence. Residents usually live at the Halfway House from six months to a year as part of a supervised program which includes vocational rehabilitation, often in cooperation with Gateway Industries of Kingston.

Gifts of new greeting cards and stationery with postage stamps for use of those patients who do not have other means to obtain these are collected by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, 27 East O'Reilly Street, Kingston, New York 12401, or may be sent direct to Louise M. Briggs, Coordinator of Volunteers Services, Middletown State Hospital, Middletown, New York 10940.

The association is a member agency of the Ulster County Community Chest.

U.S. Expects Agreement On Use of Spanish Bases

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and Spain are expected shortly, possibly by the end of this week, to sign an agreement which will permit continued use of U.S. military bases on Spanish territory for two years, diplomatic sources said today.

In return the United States will furnish $50 million in military equipment for the Spanish armed forces.

The general arrangements under which Spain finally agreed to permit a limited renewal of an agreement with the United States under which U.S. bases are maintained in Spain was worked out between Spanish officials and the undersecretary of state for political affairs, U. Alexis Johnson.

The Spanish foreign minister departed Madrid Wednesday for the United States where he was expected to sign the renewal agreement.

Neither the State Department nor the Spanish Embassy in Washington could confirm the report from diplomatic sources that the renewal of the bases agreement was about to be formalized.

Realtors Slate Final Meeting

KINGSTON—The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Board of Realtors will be held at the Savings and Loan Association, 267 Wall Street tonight at 7:30.

This will be the last meeting before the summer recess and all members are urged to be present as many matters of importance will be discussed and voted.

There will be a discussion of advertising regulations handed down by the State, also on the new Truth-in-Lending Act which will become effective July 1.

The nominating committee will make its report and the clambake committee will give plans for consideration.

The installation banquet to be held in October will also be discussed and committees announced Thursday night.

The newly formed committee to review commission rates will present their suggestions.

The Multiple Listing Service meeting will follow the board meeting.

Tito, Italy Fear Soviet Sea Muscle

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst

ROME (NEA)—It was to "explore" the unprecedented expansion of Russian naval strength in the Mediterranean that Italy's Foreign Minister Pietro Nenni went to Belgrade Yugoslavia's President Tito.

Nothing disturbs Italian leaders more than the fact that the Mediterranean, which was once considered safe under the protection of the American Sixth Fleet, is fast becoming a Russian sea.

"We know that the Sixth Fleet is still superior to anything Russia has in the Mediterranean," a high-ranking official of the Italian Foreign Ministry said. "But what guarantee do we have that the same American senators who want to withdraw U.S. troops from Vietnam and West Europe will not decide one day that it is not in America's interest to risk a conflict with Russia over Italy?"

Not that the Italians expect a Soviet attack but, like most West European nations, they no longer consider an American-dominated NATO as an effective defense against Russian aggression.

Tito, of course, has been watching the Russians like a hawk ever since they invaded Czechoslovakia. A Marxist-Leninist himself, he understands the Russians and does not trust them. He particularly fears their policy of "limited sovereignty" which ostensibly gives Moscow the right to intervene in any Communist country where, in Russia's view, "socialism is threatened."

Even Italy's Red leader Luigi Longo no longer trusts the Russians. To avoid a split in his own Communist party, he must pay lip service to Moscow's leadership. But at the latest gathering of international Reds in Moscow, Longo insisted—despite the Kremlin's attempt to browbeat him—that Russia had no right to invade Czechoslovakia and that the Soviet doctrine of limited sovereignty was contrary to the principles of Marxism-Leninism.

Obviously, in anticipation of Soviet aggressive moves, Nenni and Tito decided their nations should work together in finding ways to start "broad and direct contacts" which would bring about a conference on Mediterranean problems.

Their final communiqué implied that by "contacts" they also meant Communist Albania, Red China's only ally in the Mediterranean area, where Peking is now constructing a missile base.

Albania even echoed a statement by Vice Admiral Turner F. Caldwell Jr., director of the U.S. antisubmarine warfare programs, who warned in October that Russia was trying to gain supremacy in the Mediterranean.

Caldwell described the appearance in the Mediterranean of the Russian helicopter carrier Moskva of serving as a base for antisubmarine helicopters and of handling new vertical take-off fighter-bombers.

Another American officer, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, said that Soviet naval operations "are becoming unmistakably more aggressive and are being conducted at ever-increasing distances from their home base."

Since then the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean has been expanded considerably. The Egyptian port of Alexandria and the Syrian port of Latakia are regularly visited by Russian military vessels.

But Italian intelligence considers that the Russians' most important port of call is the former French naval base, Mers-el-Kebir, in Algeria, which Soviet ships use for urgent repairs and to take on fuel and stores.

Reacting to western concern over the Soviet infiltration, Moscow's press is justifying this permanent naval presence outside traditional territorial waters by fresh attacks on Israel and by casting the American Sixth Fleet in the role of a potential aggressor.

"As a Black Sea power and, by the same token, a Mediterranean power, the Soviet Union is closely linked with all the problems affecting the interests of this part of Europe, Asia and Africa," said a recent editorial in Moscow's Pravda.

The official newspaper of the Russian Communist party made it clear that the Soviet navy has abandoned its defensive role and has become an instrument of Kremlin diplomacy.

To Observe 200th Year Of American Revolution

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Appointment of 17 members of the temporary state commission to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution was announced today by acting Governor Malcolm Wilson.

Wilson designated John H.G. Pell of New York City as chairman and Dr. E.K. Fretwell Jr. of Buffalo as vice chairman.

The commission authorized by the 1968 legislature, is made up of 11 members appointed by the governor, five by the Senate majority leader and five by the speaker of the Assembly. Members serve without salary.

"This commission will enable us to develop a fitting observance of the bicentenary of the years which gave birth to the American nation," Wilson said.

"New York State has many mementoes of that conflict, and was the primary target of the British campaign of 1777," he said. "Today, our state is a dynamic and living embodiment of the revolution's legacy of liberty."

Pell, a noted historian, is president of the Fort Ticonderoga Association, a member of the New York State Historic Trust, and was chairman of the 1959 Hudson-Champlain Celebration.

Fretwell is president of State University College at Buffalo.

Other appointees of the governor:

Maj. Gen. Almerin C. O'Hara,

Loudonville, chief of staff to the governor.

J. Moreau Brown, Tomkins Cove, past president of the Empire State Society of Sons of the American Revolution.

Walter Averill, Poughkeepsie, a member of the state hotel and Motel Association.

Nathan S. Langdon, Greenwich, former chairman of the Greenwich Centennial.

Guy A. Graves, Schenectady, a Supreme Court justice and a member of the Company of Military Historians and the Schenectady Historical Society.

Nicholas M. Petete, Jamaica, former Assemblyman and retired municipal and Supreme Court justice.

Dr. Seth Spellman, Albany, an associate professor of social welfare and acting chairman of the department of Afro-American studies at State University at Albany.

H. Bert Mack, Atlantic Beach, contractor and philanthropist.

Col. Frederick P. Todd, Cornwall-On-Hudson, former director of West Point Museum and New Windsor Cantonment.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges named:

Sen. Dalwin J. Niles, R-Johnstown.

Otto E. Koegel of New York City chairman of the John Jay Restoration Commission.

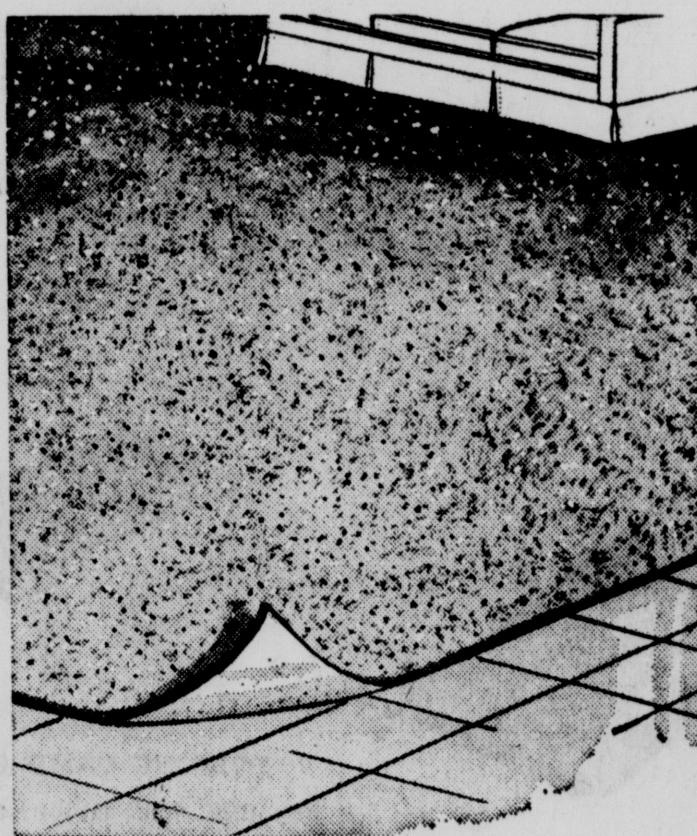

Robert A. Fusco, capitol reporter for the Record Newspapers of Troy.

Dr. I. Frank Mogavero history professor at Niagara University.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea appointed:

Name Rolison, Bell On Water Committee

Sen. Jay P. Rolison Jr. reported this week that he has been appointed by Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges to the Temporary State Commission on the Water Supply Needs of Southeastern New York.

The commission consists of 15 members, seven appointed by the governor and four each by the speaker of the Assembly and Senate majority leader. Rolison is one of the four Senate appointments. The area included in the study will be Long Island, New York City and the Counties of Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Orange, Dutchess and Ulster.

"The study," Rolison said, "is to consider the long range needs of the area for adequate water supply in order that the future economic growth and physical well-being of this portion of the state can be assured."

"As a member of the commission, I intend to join in a search for a regional solution for our water needs but I must emphasize that I will be extremely watchful to make sure the needs of Dutchess and Ulster Counties are not sacrificed to the large urban areas," Rolison added.

"I am most appreciative that the commission which, in effect, will give Ulster County two representatives."

Rolison also pointed out that the commission will serve without compensation and are to make their final report no later than Assemblyman H. Clark Bell to Dec. 15.

Fire Damages City Apartment

KINGSTON — Firemen were forced to remove a small section of the roof, and several pieces of flooring to check for fire travel.

The apartment is owned by John B. J. Kimbell Jr., of 53 Joys Lane, Hurley. The first floor of the apartment at 114 Downs Street was occupied by George Cataloto; the second floor apartment was occupied by Mrs. R. Farro.

There was no damage reported to the neighboring apartment. Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

The fire originated near a sofa bed and several boxes of combustible materials in the front section of the attic. The fire then spread vertically to the roof and horizontally to the front half of the attic. Damage was reported to the contents of the front section of the attic and part of the roof. Water damage was reported to the first and second floor apartments at 114 Downs Street.

Services Listed For Pfc. Rundle, Killed in Viet

KINGSTON — Funeral services for Pfc. James Rundle Jr., 26, of Jumping Brook Lane, Town of Ulster, killed in action June 6 in Vietnam, will be held Monday, June 23 at 11 a. m. from the Keyser Funeral Service Kingston Chapel, Albany and Manor Avenues.

The Rev. Olney E. Cook, former pastor of St. Pauls Lutheran Church, of which Rundle was a member, will officiate at the services.

Rundle, a graduate of Kingston High School and Springfield College, served as youth director of the Kingston and Ulster County YMCA from June 1968 until his induction into the Army in October. While in high school, he was a member of the "Y" Boy's Leader's Club.

Rundle is survived by his parents, Mrs. and Mrs. James Rundle; two brothers, Thomas Rundle of Kingston and Robert Rundle of Sawkill; three sisters, Mrs. James (Rosemarie) Harris of Saugerties, Mrs. Thomas (Margaret) Severson of Ulster Park and Mrs. Lester (Shirley) Felton of Kingston; two aunts, Mrs. Rodina Geschwinder of Kingston and Mrs. Maude Ewel of Kingston and one uncle, Thomas Rundle, of San Jose Valley, Calif.

Full military honors will be accorded the deceased veteran at Wiltwyck Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Kingston Chapel Saturday from 7 to 9 p. m. and Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

The family respectfully suggests that, in lieu of flowers, contributions be given to the James Rundle Jr. Memorial Fund at the YMCA.

The Scene at Woodstock: New Mecca for 'Rucksackers'

typical coffee house landmark. If the food and espresso are meritorious, it is sometimes difficult to enjoy them when the couple at the next table is trying to find God or discover Self while floating on a cool sea of warm Jello by burning incense through lunch.

This Year's Capital

What has now become obvious, with summer well along its way, is that the Rucksack Revolution, fought in the name of Youth-as-Revolt, has swelled into Upstate New York and proclaimed Woodstock as its capital. The town is now thought to be filled with some of the biggest rock stars in the country. In point of fact, there are a few—but most of the in-residence musicians have earned whatever stardom they can claim from that ubiquitous description, "just back from New York."

Woodstock as THE SCENE and Tinker Street as THE STRIP have been a-building for the past few summer seasons. It began about four summers ago when a minor confrontation took place between police and youthful folksingers who claimed the grassy Village Green as their outdoor stage. And, until it flowered into full bloom this year, the outside influx was simply put down by local residents as just a lot of "dirty, barefoot kids."

The confrontation this season has taken more complex forms. The good gray populace sees the ever-swelling scene makers as unwashed, unrepentant hippies and social misfits. Mothers and ministers have suggested they be driven out of town at the point of a gun. A local trespass law is now in effect for bidding flower children to germinate on private property and, since all Woodstock is technically private property, they've been carting them off by the busload for violations.

Big Deep, a swimming hole just outside the village that seemed roseate to even those bearded and longhairs without pink and yellow-lensed sunglasses, has been closed by the town and posted against trespassing. Indeed, posted signs have gone up around more than a few neat cottages to discourage sleeping out on private lawns or in private woods, and some business establishments boast signs on their doors announcing "No Bare Feet Allowed."

Uplight White Knights
Much of Woodstock's long-time population is uplight about gurus in a town where Indians once hunted and where, only 20 years ago, the symbol of the Ku Klux Klan, a fiery cross, was burned. The Love Generation commuting to their appointed rounds on California-style choppers and in buses painted like fluorescent Easter eggs disturbs many Woodstockers.

A lot of the blame for Woodstock's sudden appeal as the place for a weekend gambol is placed on the metropolitan press. Newspapers like The Village Voice and the East Village Other tout it as a psychedelic playground. Just last week the New York Post assured its readers: "The East Village scene is no longer where it's at," and stressed that real swingers "now go to Upstate Woodstock." To make matters worse, Louis Abolafia, the Love Party's candidate for President of the U.S., authored a widely circulated article describing Woodstock as the land of milk and honey, nude swimming and willing women. Holiday magazine did much the same.

One can even find some Woodstockers who blame the town's biggest celebrity for the hip incursion. Folk and rock idol Bob Dylan brought them, they say, and he can take them back to where they belong.

Whatever the reason, the kids with long hair, goofy clothes, beads and flowers seem determined to stay. Those with money are buying homes and businesses and, each year, more and more of them stick it out through the hard winters. One newcomer who is determined to last is Leslie Towbin, a young Philadelphia importer, who put $54,000 into a business building on the Village Green and close to that amount into a private residence.

Back to the Road

The longhairs without money, many of them deliberately unwashed and ungroomed in their rebellion against a sterile middle-class society, will probably not last. Woodstock is not an inexpensive place to live and one cannot gorge here on peppers stuffed indigestibly with rice as rucksackers have done in Istanbul.

Maybe next year at this time, THE SCENE will have shifted to another place and traffic on Tinker Street will be moving more rapidly. Maybe the action will be in Europe or Toronto or back for a rerun in the East Village, or California. Maybe beards will be out and hippies will learn to be satisfied with sofa-sitting like too many of the rest of us.

And chances are that in spite of protests by Woodstockers that such an "undesirable element" brings crime and drug problems and leaves rented houses in shambles, the art colony will be able to absorb the newcomers better than most communities.

It is, after all, the town that managed to take the artists in stride more than 50 years ago, and the caste system of the hippies bears more than a few resemblances to that of the early artists.

Some Woodstockers today insist hippies ignore the churches. But in the early 1900's a minister here, who had been a missionary in China, reportedly said: "Woodstock is the most Godless place I ever preached in; the artists are worse than the heathen Chinese!"

Theme's the Same

And the New York Herald Tribune in the 1920's described Woodstock in a paragraph that might have been written today: Said the Trib: "If you come to Woodstock for the first time on a Saturday morning and land in the center of the village, you rub your eyes, blink, and wonder whether you have suddenly been magically transported to some carnival in southern Europe. It is a fair of many little stalls, around a large open space, and the artists bring their crafts and wares to sell. Nobody wears regular clothes. The costumes, any of them, would do for a masquerade."

The Evening Post Saturday Magazine in 1915 echoed 1967; referred to Woodstock's Rock City section as a "wicked suburb;" spoke of the "picturesque" dressed poets, writers and students "resplendent in barefoot sandals, baggy trousers, pseudo-Chinese blouses of purple silk, untamed wilderness of curly hair and beard, and blouses very daring in the 'V' and worn with very short skirts, bright headbands four inches wide, barbaric gold earrings three inches long and bright green stockings."

Even this spring's closing of Big Deep had its counterpart in the '20s. When the Kingston Water Board leased land adjoining the Sawkill Creek and posted "No Trespassing" signs, Kingston do-gooders said of those who bathed there: "The artists look dirty to me, especially the ones from Greenwich Village." To which the artists replied by calling an "Indignation Meeting" and insisting: "From time immemorial people have enjoyed the water rights along this stream." The upshot was that dozens met at the post office one morning and went swimming in Kingston's drinking water, ignoring the legal strictures to make a test case.

And if A is for acid (LSD) and B is for boo (marijuana) in today's "on the road" subculture, A was for alcohol and B for bigger and better bashes in the Woodstock of another era. The art colony even managed to weather the Maverick Festival, which was certainly no kindergarten gathering. A wild, free-for-all of applejack guzzling and bonfires ignited under Fords and Packards in its final years, its demise was blamed on the metropolitan papers just as today's tourist upsurge is charged to them.

In Its Defense

Woodstockers defended the Festival as an event of "spectacular quality" which had been "distorted into an annual 'dirty item' by big city papers. It all sounds very familiar and, based on past rumblings and their eventual resolution, one can actually visualize Woodstockers learning to live with the newcomers of the 60's and their very in, very marketable hippiedom, just as their grandfathers learned to live with the artists and the commercialism that followed them.

But the hippie merchants must also be prepared to learn to live with Woodstockers and to accept the fact that frantic consumers of their rabbit skins, leather sandals, incense and candles will fade away in September. Winter is an uncluttered, unclothed, quiet and shuttered scene in the art colony, and it is difficult to imagine even two people gathering on the Village Green if a submarine surfaced there and misfired its torpedoes.

In the final analysis, hippies will never replace art galleries and the peaceful pursuit of life in Woodstock, but they could become a permanent and interesting part of the skyline. Yet, if they are ever to be accepted as an in-crowd, they will have to prove to locals that they can last out a few bitter winters—and they'll have to stock their shops with ice skates and ski sweaters as well as with feathered, arm patches, water pipes, bangles and beads.

Fire Damages Parked Car

KINGSTON A car parked at the corner of Broadway and McEntee Street in the city was extensively damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon.

Equipment from the Kingston Fire Department was rushed to the scene at 3:50 p.m. Fire officials found the front end of an auto owned by Richard Amato, of 34 Andrew Street, Kingston entirely engulfed by flames.

Pressurized water and carbon dioxide extinguishers were used to douse the blaze. Firemen were forced to remove the padding from the dashboard of the car, remove the inside mats and force open the hood to get at the fire.

Extensive damage was reported to the engine, front fender, hood and floor mats of the car. The front seat of the auto received smoke and water damage.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined.

Black Awareness Group Slates Picnic Saturday

KINGSTON In commemoration of the emancipation of the slaves on June 19, 1863, the Black Awareness Group of Kingston will hold a "Bring Your Own Thing" picnic Saturday, June 21 at Block Park.

The 2 p.m. event will include games, music and poetry readings. The public is invited to attend.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks opened mixed today in moderately active trading.

The market's technical rally shrank late Wednesday, and again there seems to be little in the news budget that could move upward move may be in the offing due to the prolonged slump, but tight money and a lull on the Vietnam peace front loom as major depressing influences.

Shortly after the opening, the UPI stock market indicator was off 0.24 per cent on 329 issues crossing the tape. There were 132 declines and 100 advances.

Oils were mixed, as were electronics. Chemicals also followed an irregular path.

Atlantic Richfield eased 1/4, with Standard of California and Standard of Ohio each down 1/2. Pennzoil gave up 1/2. But Shell added 1/2 and Gulf 3/4. Amerasia lost 1/4.

Dow lost 1/2 in the chemicals, but Eastman Kodak picked up a full point.

Rabbinical Leader Alarmed at Trend

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) —

"Why should we be Jews?" More and more youths are asking themselves that question as they try to shed their Jewish identity in modern U.S. society, says a leader of conservative rabbis.

Rabbi Ralph Simon of Chicago, president of the conservative Rabbinical Assembly, told the liberal Central Conference of American Rabbis that the college campus is the greatest threat to American Judaism's existence.

Rabbi Simon spoke Wednesday to the 500 reform rabbis attending the four-day CCAR meeting which ends tonight.

One million of the 5.6 million Jews in the country are in the liberal or reform branch. More than 1.2 million are conservative, the moderate branch.

Simon told his audience: "The new generation is not asking: Why should we be orthodox or reform Jews? They are asking: Why should we be Jews?"

The Chicago rabbi said the problem cuts across any reform-conservative dividing lines of ritual and practice. The danger is one of indifference rather than difference, he added.

Rabbi Simon said an estimated 90 per cent of Jewish young people attend college at some period of their lives, yet hundreds of colleges have no Jewish counselors or cultural programs.

He said "we all have been guilty of short-sightedness, lack of imagination and failure of nerve" in not providing enough funds to help Jewish students answer the basic question: "To be or not to be a Jew."

It was the first time a head of the conservative rabbinic addressed the reform rabbis' year assembly.

The reform and conservative rabbinical bodies have been cooperating in some areas in the past year or two. Referring to the orthodox rabbis, Rabbi Simon said he hoped "the example of our fellowship may evoke the emulation of those who have not joined in it."

Accused Killer Of Extortionist Cleared by Jury

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Salvatore "Sam" Bonvino, the 76-year-old store owner accused of killing an alleged extortionist, was cleared of a first degree manslaughter charge by an Onondaga County grand jury Wednesday.

Bonvino shot and killed George Tork, 26, also of Syracuse, June 1 when Tork entered his coffee shop and demanded $500.

"Here's your $500," police quoted Bonvino as saying as he shot the victim five times at close range. The grand jury, apparently feeling Bonvino acted in self defense, returned a no true bill in the case.

The day before the shooting, Bonvino reported to police that Tork had demanded the $500 in cash. Detectives, at the time, noted that Bonvino owned a gun and suggested he protect himself with the firearm.

Stanford - Pine Plains Weekly Purchased by Dyson Interests

MILLBROOK Dymer Communications of Millbrook has purchased the Register-Herald, official weekly newspaper for the Towns of Stanford and Pine Plains and for Pine Plains Central School District.

The sale was announced today by Henry Grant and Mrs. Eda Grant Aroh, publishers of the Register-Herald, and by Robert Dyson, vice-president of Dymer Communications.

Dymer, publishers of the weekly Millbrook Round Table, will begin operation of the Register-Herald July 1. John Dyson, Democratic congressional candidate in 1968, is president of Dymer.

Robert Dyson has assumed direction of Dymer during his brother's tour of Army duty in Vietnam. David Parker, Round Table editor, will become managing editor of both papers. John Parker, his brother, will edit the Register-Herald, with offices next to the Pine Plains Post Office.

The Grant and Aroh families have published the Register-Herald since 1924. After 45 years, Grant and Mrs. Aroh says they wish to retire. They stated their confidence that "the Register-Herald will be in good hands, the Millbrook organization being closely associated with our area."

Dyson emphasized that the Register-Herald "will remain very much a local newspaper. We will offer a larger paper, more photography and advertising, and a new 'look' as a result of offset printing, but we will continue the Register-

'Up With People' Has Captivated Thousands

FRANK FIELDS
... Guitarist

BY JON POWERS

KINGSTON

From the streets of Harlem and the steps of the Presidential platform at Inauguration '69, to Madrid, Paris and Rome, "Up With People" has captivated countless thousands with their enthusiastic musical approach to the problems that face man today.

On June 27-29, "Up With People" will bring their widely acclaimed show to the Kingston High School Auditorium for three performances beginning at 8:15 p. m. each evening.

There will be a nominal admission charge for the concerts. Although they usually require pre-arranged sponsorship before putting on a show, "Up With People" is coming to the local area hopeful that donations from private businesses and individuals will be sufficient to defray traveling expenses.

In 24 Nations

If their worldwide travels, that have covered 24 nations, are any indication, "Up With People" should receive an enthusiastic welcome from the residents of Kingston and Ulster County. The cast members are still trying to locate housing accommodations wherever possible to provide facilities for the 160 entertainers during their three day stay here.

"Up With People" will be coming to the Kingston area directly from an engagement for the governor of Vermont. The group has entertained in 49 different states, 92 military bases and more than 1,000 high schools and colleges in this country alone since its formation in 1965. The group has also entertained servicemen aboard aircraft carriers at several ports in the United States.

Calling on men of every nationality, race and religion to resolve their differences, "Up With People" has staged concerts at Carnegie Hall in New York City, Hollywood Bowl in Los Angeles and Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C. They've staged street shows in both New York and Cleveland and have entertained at 20 major conventions, including both the 1968 Democratic and Republican National Conventions.

In Inauguration Parade

On January 20, 1969, "Up With People" was chosen to ride the theme float at the Inauguration Parade in Washington, D.C. They were chosen by the Inaugural Committee to lead the procession because, "they best represent the aspirations of our nation and their generation around the world," and "they express in their music the new spirit mankind must have to succeed in the space age."

In addition to appearing on two network television shows, "Up With People" has been seen on national TV in Germany, Italy, Japan, Norway, the Congo, Brazil, Venezuela, Peru and Argentina.

"Up With People" has performed at the invitation of the government in 23 nations including Korea, Spain, Austria, Monaco and Finland.

Packed audiences have greeted the travelers at the riot-torn Sorbonne University in Paris, Bilbao University in Madrid and the Place Ville-Marie in Montreal. On May 19 of this year, "Up With People" performed before more people in Bologna, Italy than witnessed the May Day parade in that strongly communist city two weeks earlier.

On Ash Wednesday, "Up With People" was received in a special audience by Pope Paul VI. Several weeks later, Emperor Haile Selassie welcomed "Sing Out Africa", an African version of "Up With People," to Ethiopia.

According to an "Up With People" spokesman, the group has been trying to set up a tour of military bases in South Vietnam. But so far security problems have dampened the prospects. The group had also planned a tour of Czechoslovakia this summer, but the Soviet invasion there cancelled the plans. To date, the "Up With People" is making plans for a tour of Russia and her neighboring satellites.

Educational Experience

"Up With People" is an educational experience, not only for the hundreds of young people who have traveled and sung across the world, but also for the families who house and feed the cast members in every community, state and nation they visit.

While the group is in Kingston, local residents will have the opportunity to live and speak with high school and college age students who have traveled more than 125,000 miles across five continents in the short span of four years.

Education is an important ingredient for the members who comprise "Up With People". The informal knowledge from speaking and living with persons from every race, religion and nationality is only a part of an education that continues for 24 hours every day throughout the entire year.

The "Up With People" entourage is a high school and college in itself. Cast members are able to earn school credit while they travel across the world, and are aided by fully equipped libraries, modern audio-visual aids and certified teachers from 13 different countries. Ken Doran, an "Up With People" cast member since 1965 summed up the value of "Up With People High School" when he said, "It took a new kind of discipline." And Julie Fehring added, simply, "I learned how to learn."

Huguenot Street: A 300-Years-Old Monument

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ
In 1677, a small but ambitious band of Huguenots (French Protestants), who had taken refuge in a Dutch settlement near what is now Hurley, in order to escape religious persecution in Europe, packed all of their belongings in three oxcarts and trekked 15 miles down the Wallkill River Valley to a new home, situated on a fertile field guarded by the "great wall" of the Shawangunk Mountains. The Huguenots called this settlement New Paltz, and after making an honest purchase of these lands from the native Esopus Indians, they proceeded to build a "peaceful home" where they could find permanent refuge, and also retain their language, customs, and religion.

Sturdy Stone Dwellings
By 1692, they began to replace their original log huts with sturdy stone dwellings, which have endured the trials of time and remain essentially unchanged today, a monument to their architectural quality and to the integrity, industry and independence of these early settlers.

Much of the credit for the preservation of these magnificent stone houses of the "Streets of the Huguenots" belongs to the Huguenot Historical Society of

New Paltz.

With the cooperation of the various Huguenot family associations, the Historical Society, the Huguenot Historical Society, which has active chapters in a dozen states across the nation, have been made within the past 20 years, according to the society's president Kenneth E. Hasbrouck.

Special

Hasbrouck says that the society embarked on an ambitious project to purchase the houses "one by one" when it was feared that the identity of the historical site would be obscured by Post-World War II growth in the New Paltz area.

The most remarkable fact about the stone houses is that this complex has remained essentially unchanged over the three centuries. In fact, the historic site is possibly the oldest street in the country with its original houses.

Hasbrouck points out that this fact is especially noteworthy because, during the later part of the 19th century, the stone houses were the slums of the Village of New Paltz.

The oldest structures in the complex are the Jean Hasbrouck House, also known as the Memorial House Museum, the Hugo Freer House, and the Abraham Hasbrouck House — all constructed in 1694. Subsequently, the Bevier Elting House, built in 1698 and the Dubois Homestead, now the Old Fort Restaurant, built in 1705, were added to the settlement.

The Deyo House, originally built in 1692, but entirely remodeled in 1890, the Ezekiel Elting or "1709 House," and the LeFevre House, which will be open to the public for the first time this year, complete the stone house village.

Limestone Construction
Hasbrouck says that the original dwellings were constructed from native limestone gathered from the fields as the Huguenot settlers cleared their farms, and that the walls of the houses were laid up, two feet thick, with clay and straw mortar.

The original structures were enlarged as the next generation grew and prospered, but for the next 230 years, five of the six houses remained virtually unchanged and occupied by descendants of the original families.

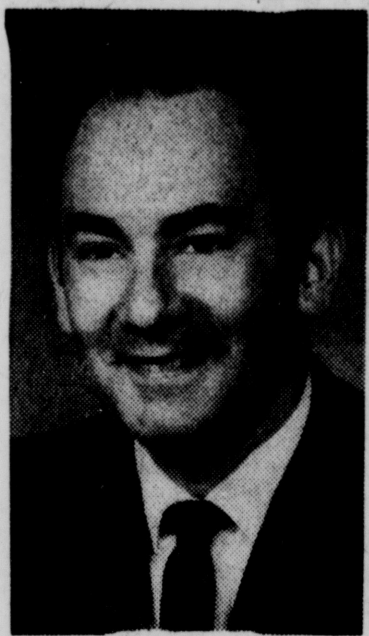

Tours of historic Huguenot Street are conducted daily except Monday at 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. A small donation is requested to help defray the expenses of maintaining the houses.

These furnishings include such heirlooms as 17th century Dutch tables, Livingston dowery chests and Dutch closet beds.

Now that the society owns all the stone houses on the historical site their major emphasis will be placed on educational programs according to Hasbrouck.

The interior furnishings of the stone houses, which can be observed in their original settings, reflect a synthesis of the Huguenot's European heritage and their pioneering ingenuity.

Abandon Search For 2 Men in Lake Ontario

OLCOTT, N.Y. (AP) — The Coast Guard has abandoned its search for two men presumed drowned in Lake Ontario after one of them was knocked from a sailboat and the other dived into the water in an attempt to save him.

The missing men have been identified as Frank Laidlaw, 26, and Louis Filicetti, 22, both of Lewiston. The search for them was called off Wednesday. The accident occurred Tuesday morning.

The missing men and two others were aboard a 31-foot sailboat when it was caught in high seas about 1½ miles off shore, near this lake community north of Lockport, Niagara County Sheriff's deputies said.

They said the two other men, Gary Joy and David Morrison, both 21 and also of Lewiston, told them Laidlaw was knocked from the boat and Filicetti tried to aid him.

Joy and Morrison told deputies they were not able to handle the sailboat and it drifted away from the men in the water.

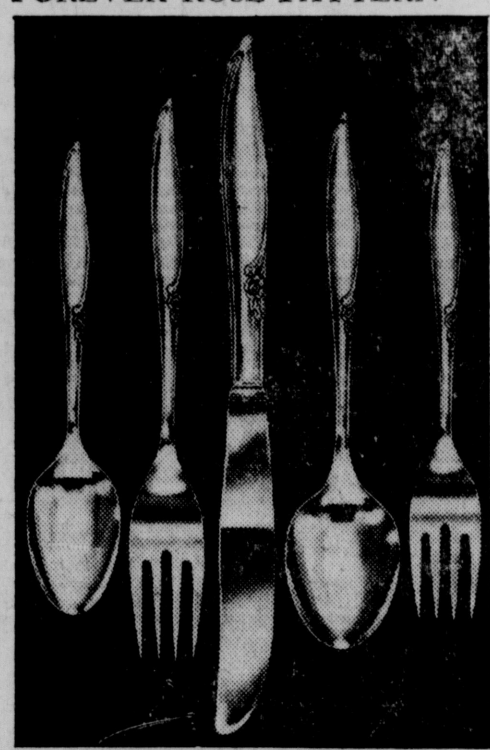

They were towed to shore about four hours after the men went into the water.

HVPS Benefit Sat.

Vladimir Padwa, internationally known pianist, composer and teacher will give a concert Saturday, June 21 at 8 p. m. in the J. Watson Bailey High School, Kingston. A benefit concert, all proceeds go to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society Sustaining Fund Drive.

The program for the concert will be in two parts with the first portion to feature some of Padwa's own compositions. First to be heard will be his "Songs and Clarinet Sonata" which will utilize several musicians from the Kingston area, including Mrs. Amos Newcombe. Next will be a group of piano compositions by Padwa. In the second part of the concert the artist will perform a group of piano etudes, from Czerny to Scriabin, as a demonstration of the varying complexity of works for the piano.

Vladimir Padwa was born in Russia and received his musical education at the Conservatories of Leningrad, Berlin and Leipzig, and was a pupil of Ferruccio Busoni. He has concertized throughout the world and has been acclaimed as "a master of his instrument". He was a founder and member of the First Piano Quartet, and has recorded for RCA Victor.

Distinguished Award Winner

In his extensive career, he was also associated with Mischka Elman and other renowned artists; has won both the Madrigal Society and Peabody awards.

A well-known composer, and member of ASCAP, Padwa has published much educational material, including textbooks on Harmony and Piano Sight-reading. Among his major works, his much acclaimed ballet "Tom Sawyer" has received numerous performances in both concert with narration, and ballet form by major symphony orchestras throughout the U.S. as well as many radio and television performances. His Symphony in D and Concerto for Two Pianos were premiered in Washington, D.C.

Among Padwa's recent commissions are his original choral score to Goethe's "Faust," a Clarinet Sonata, premiered at American Music Festival, a Concerto for Choir, Percussion and Piano, and a set of Variations for Brass Quintet. A concert, devoted exclusively to his own compositions, was given in Vienna under the auspices of the U.S. State Department.

Padwa is chairman of the Piano Department and professor of piano and theory at the N.Y. College of Music. Early in his career, he was one of the founders of the State Conservatory in Tallinn.

The benefit concert here has been arranged by the Ulster County Council of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic under the chairmanship of Mrs. Raymond Rignall. Assisting her are Father David Bronson and Richard North. Tickets for the special concert at $2 per person are available through the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, or by calling Mrs. Rignall or Mrs. Roy Ickes.

Awarded Diploma in Albany

Miss Carol Ada Haines, of 48 Roosevelt Avenue, this city, daughter of Claude Haines and the late Mrs. Lillian Boice Haines, was one of 29 girls awarded diplomas at the graduation exercises of the Class of 1969 of the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing held at Shaker High School, Latham, on Friday, June 13, at 8 p.m. The diplomas were awarded by Truman Cameron, chairman of the Nursing School Advisory Committee.

Miss Haines was the recipient of the Mildred Christian Memorial Award, given in memory of the late Mildred Christian, R.N., a young lady who had a short but inspiring nursing career. In presenting the award, Dr. Louis Jakovic, head of the

MISS CAROL A. HAINES
(Lorey Studio)

Department of Pathology at Memorial Hospital, said, "The Mildred Christian Memorial Award is given to the student who, in the opinion of the faculty, will contribute the most to the nursing profession."

While a student at Memorial, Miss Haines was an active member of the Nursing Students Association of New York State and of the National Student Nurses Association. In March, 1967, she was nominated for Outstanding Student Nurse at Memorial School of Nursing. In May of that year she attended a convention of the NSA of NYS in New York City. In October, 1967, she attended the state convention of the NSA of NYS at Syracuse, and in May, 1968 she attended a national convention in Dallas, Tex.

During 1967-68 she was corresponding secretary for District No. 5 NSA of NYS and during 1968-69 she served that group as chairman of the nominating committee. She served as Memorial's representative to that same group during 1967-68 and 1968-69, and during 1968-69 she also served as treasurer for the student government association of the school. She served as Editor-in-Chief of Memorial's student yearbook, the 1969 "Cappa Alba." Miss Haines maintained more than a "B" average during her three years at Memorial.

Miss Haines will be employed by the Kingston City Hospital and, beginning in September, will attend Ulster County Community College as a full-time student.

Augustine-Fredenberg Wedding

St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Johanna Ann Augustine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland A. Augustine of 74 Harding Avenue, Kingston, to Jeffrey Maren Fredenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fredenberg, 58 VanDeBogart Road, Woodstock, on Sunday, June 15.

The Rev. Robert D. Saccoman of St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, celebrated the Nuptial Mass and officiated at the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. David Gaise of Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. James Sweeney, organist, accompanied Mrs. Ruth Sibley of Stroudsburg, Pa. who sang traditional wedding selections. Mrs. Sibley was soloist for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fredenberg's marriage 26 years ago. Gold vases of gladioli, pompons and baby's breath in the rainbow colors of the wedding decorated the main altar and the side altars were adorned with vases of rainbow colored gladioli, pompons and baby's breath. White bows with floral arrangements marked the family pews and satin bows decorated all other pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white silk organza, fashioned with a stand up neckline, elbow length sleeves, an empire bodice and A-line skirt terminating in a removable chapel length train. The gown was trimmed with appliques of reembrodered Alencon lace and accented with pearl beading. Her matching headpiece was a formal, chapel length mantilla of Alencon lace. She carried a colonial nosegay of white roses, daisies, baby's breath and ivy.

Miss Louise DeLaus of Rochester was maid of Honor. She wore an orchid gown fashioned with an empire bodice, short puffed sleeves of lace, and a jakarta skirt. Her matching picture hat of lace was trimmed with satin ribbon and streamers and she carried a white basket of white and orchid daisies with orchid streamers.

Attendants were Patricia Simpson, Kingston; Sharon Perry, Kingston, cousin of the bride; Carole Reyman, New York, cousin of the bride; Louise Rutski, Kingston; Jennifer Fredenberg, sister of the bridegroom, was junior bridesmaid; and Rosemary Augustine, sister of the bride was flower girl. Their gowns and picture hats were fashioned similarly to that of the honor attendant in yellow, pink, blue, white, aqua, and apricot, respectively. The bridesmaids carried white baskets of white daisies and daisies to match their gowns. The junior bridesmaid carried a white basket of white and aqua daisies with white daisies and the flower girl carried a basket of white and apricot daisies with apricot streamers. Miss Augustine wore floral crown headpieces.

Joseph Small Jr. of Stroudsburg, Pa., was best man. Ushers were Harry Maren, New Jersey, cousin of the bridegroom; William Maren, Pennsylvania, uncle of the bridegroom; John Small, Pennsylvania; Roland J. Augustine, Kingston, brother of the bride; Anthony Greco, Ulster Park, cousin of the bride, was junior usher; and Joseph Paul Augustine, brother of the bride, served as ringbearer.

After the wedding, a reception for 300 guests was held at the Capri '400'. For her wedding trip to Bermuda, the bride selected a three-piece white knit suit featuring red, white and blue stripes, with white accessories. Restaurant, Port Ewen, and a corsage of white roses with red, white and blue ribbons.

The bride, a graduate of Academy of St. Ursula, Nazareth College of Rochester, and Tobe-Coburn School of Fashion in New York was fashion coordinator for Sears Roebuck and Company, Kingston.

Her husband, an alumnus of Pottsville Area High School, Bull's Preparatory, Silver Springs, Md., East-Stroudsburg State College in Pennsylvania; and Ulster County Community College, will further his education at Rochester Institute of Technology. He is a member of Sigma Pi fraternity, Beta Psi Chapter.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredenberg will reside at Clayton Arms Apartments, 400 Clay Road, Apt. 21, Rochester.

MRS. JEFFREY M. FREDENBERG (Photo Workshop)

Pritchard-Rooney Nuptials Told

Miss Susan Beth Pritchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Pritchard, 1 Hilton Place, Saugerties, became the bride of Michael Rooney, son of Mrs. Margaret Rooney, Albany, and Robert Rooney, Saugerties, June 1, at the First Congregational Church, Saugerties.

The Rev. Frederick J. Imhoff officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. John Harris provided traditional wedding selections and arrangements of multi-colored flowers decorated the altar.

The bride chose a dress of white lace accented with a bow of yellow. A crown of white daisies held her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow daisy pompons with streamers of white.

Miss Jessica Pettengill, home of the bride's parents for the immediate family and close friends.

The bride was graduated from the Saugerties High School and attended Ulster County Community College.

Her husband is an alumnus of Colonie High School. He also served with the United States Marines.

They will honeymoon through the Southern states and Florida.

Would your organization like to increase its budget by $500? Volunteer groups throughout New York State, which have conducted an outstanding service project, are eligible for this prize and others through the Community Service Awards Competition sponsored by the New York State Fair.

All entries will be judged in White Plains on July 9 and 10 and the winners will be notified immediately. The awards will be presented during the Women's Day Luncheon, Wednesday, August 27. The Fair is open from August 26 to Labor Day.

The judges recently named by Dr. Corinne Galvin, Awards Chairman, are Cynthia Lowry, Pleasantville; Elizabeth Csercsevi, White Plains, and the Hon. Everett J. Penny, White Plains.

The deadline for the competition is June 20. Any active volunteer group or organization in the state, whose unpaid efforts resulted in current achievements, is eligible to enter the competition. The group does not have to be a formal organization and many be any size. The project submitted must be at the community level, however, but the group may be a national affiliate.

Entries must consist of a narrative description of the project. Pictures, newspaper clippings, reports and other materials may be used to supplement the description but are not required.

Further information on the Community Service Awards may be obtained by writing to the Entry Department, New York State Fair, Syracuse, New York 13209.

Better Showerheads

Old showerheads were shaped like the nose on a watering can and offered the user just as little control over water flow. Today's showerhead has as many as eight different spray settings, ranging from fine, needle and coarse to fullflow. Unlike the old types, which often clogged, today's are self-cleaning.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length white crepe dress with matching coat of crocheted Irish linen lace. A satin bow held her chapel length silk illusion veil and she carried a nosegay of white rose buds, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mrs. Brigitta Schwebel of Poughkeepsie served as matron of honor. She wore a pink street-length silk and linen dress. An arrangement of pink rosebuds and baby's breath served as her headpiece and she carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Richard Cook of Freeport was best man for his brother. Ushers were Tom Moglia and Michael Comisky, fraternity brothers of the bridegroom.

After the wedding a reception for 50 guests was held at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

For her wedding trip, the bride selected a turquoise and white linen suit with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The bride completed her junior year at State University College at New Paltz where she majored in art education. She plans to continue her education at Long Island.

Her husband, an alumnus of State University College at New Paltz, earned a BA degree cum laude, majored in Psychology, and is a member of Phieta Sigma fraternity, co-captain of Wrestling Team and member of Psychology Club. He will do graduate work at Columbia University in September.

The couple will reside at Freeport, L.I.

Brother Lionel Feted

A progressive dinner party was held on Saturday evening, June 14, to honor Brother Lionel C.S.C. Host families for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Feeney, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Martin F. Haggerty and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Reis.

Brother Lionel is a native of Kingston and a member of the Congregation of the Holy Cross at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana. He has hosted the above couples for the last several years on their visits to Notre Dame. Friends and alumni of the University attended the dinner party.

Brother Lionel is presently a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fisher of Kingston.

LUNCHEON MEETING — The New York State Chapter, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, through an invitation by the organization's national councilor, Mrs. Adam H. Porter, held its annual up-state meeting in Kingston June 9, at a luncheon in Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. William L. Lanyon, Westhampton Beach, L. I., president, conducted the meeting with 47 members in attendance. Announcement was made of the 192nd anniversary of the adoption of the Star Spangled Banner as the National Anthem. A ceremony has been scheduled for June 16 at Battery Park, New York City. Mrs. Porter reported on the April 10 General Court held in Washington, explaining that Ulster County and Albany records have been indexed by Dr. Kenneth Scott of Queens College, with the Society contributing $900 towards the endeavor. It was voted to donate $2,000 for paperbacks for Vietnam servicemen; $100 worth of awards to service academies; and $200 to Air Force Academy. The National Society has been placed on the permanent list for the Jury at Freedom's Foundation, Valley Forge. Principals who attended the luncheon included (L-R) Mrs. Chester W. DuMond, vice president; Mrs. William L. Lanyon, president; Mrs. Adam H. Porter, national councilor; Mrs. Ralph T. Mumford, chaplain. Hostesses for the historic tour which concluded the day's activities were local members, Miss Martha Freer, Court House; Miss Florence Tappen, Old Dutch Church and Wiltwyck Chapter, DAR; Mrs. Cloyd L. Elias, chairman of the House Committee. The Old Senate House and the Senate House Museum were also included in the tour. Mrs. Frederick MacDowell of Newburgh was welcomed into membership and eight new membership applications were received. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Lt. (jg) and Mrs. Richard Kittles of Jacksonville, Fla., are receiving congratulations on the birth of twin boys, Darryl James and Darren Thomas, born June 2 at Memorial of Jacksonville Hospital.

Lt. Kittles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jenner Kittles of 110 Florence Street, Kingston, and is currently serving in the U.S. Navy as Executive Officer on board the USS Patate at Mayport, Fla.

Curtains Off Sills

When putting up summer curtains, make sure they "escape" the sills by one-half to three-quarters of an inch. This will keep them from "sweeping" and picking up dirt.

MOOSE INSTALLATIONS — Kingston Chapter 697, Women of the Moose, held installation ceremonies Saturday, June 14. Principals participating in the event included (L-R) John L. Slizewski, past governor of the Moose, who was installing regent; Jane Thronburg, senior regent; Jean Borucinski, junior graduate regent; and Elsie Nessel, installing guide. Other officers include Kay Eaton, junior regent; Anne Rhode, chaplain; Caroline Hyde, treasurer; Eileen Nessel, secretary. Installing chaplain was Ida Rhoden. Officers of Kingston Lodge No. 970 served as escorts. (Freeman photo by Haines).

ARC FUND AUGMENTED—Members of Eta Eta Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, augmented the treasury of the Association for Retarded Children last week. Through various fund raising projects, the social organization was able to turn over proceeds to Dan Leahy (L) executive director of ARC. With Mr. Leahy are (L-R) Mrs. Hiram Driscoll, president; Mrs. Richard Hamsher, treasurer; and Mrs. Jack Kiegle, service chairman. (Freeman photo by Haines).

ULSTER GARDEN CLUB—Special attention is being given to the Stone Ridge Library garden in preparation for the fair on June 21. Mrs. D. William Daron, member of the library board and chairman of the library garden committee, and Mrs. Francis Davenport, horticulture chairman of the Ulster Garden Club, which has this garden as a special project this year, head up the joint committee. Working on the garden are (L-R) Mrs. Davenport, chairman; Mrs. Clarence Hansen and Mrs. Sherman Hasbrouck, members of the committee. Surplus plants will be available the day of the fair. Flowers from the library garden, as well as other gardens in Stone Ridge, will be used to decorate the tables for the champagne supper-dance the night of the Fair. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

RON SANDERS, teacher of international folk and square dance, will continue his dance series program every Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Town Hall, Woodstock, through mid-July. Friday, June 13, was the first in the series which is being presented by Performing Arts of Woodstock. The 13th, when it falls on a Friday, is a thing of which to take heed, especially when beginning a program of dance instructions in Greek, Israeli, and Balkan Dance, with hot humid weather and rain as a side course. However, approximately 50 persons attended and were introduced into basic dance steps. The program is varied and persons may join the series at any session. Refreshments will be served at tomorrow evening's program.

Meeting Tonight
The regular meeting of the Town of Ulster Democratic Social Club will be held tonight at Lake Katrine Grange Hall, Lake Katrine at 8 o'clock. All Democrats are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Joins BOCES Staff

Mrs. Louise Wunderle who has been teaching special education, secondary level, for the past seven years at Onteora Central School, Boiceville, will begin a new position as Director of Special Education for Board of Cooperative Educational Services in Oneida County on July 1.

Mrs. Wunderle was formerly principal of Special Services School for Emotionally Disturbed of Nassau County before coming to this area.

Active locally in various organizations, she has held the position of recording secretary for Ulster County Chapter of Association for Retarded Children; recording secretary for Ulster County Chapter of New York State Association of Teachers of Mentally Handicapped. On the state level, she is corresponding secretary for New York State Association of Teachers of Mentally Handicapped. She will appear on the program at the fall conference of New York State Association of Teachers of the Mentally Handicapped which has been scheduled for October 30 - November 2 at Statler-Hilton, Buffalo, where she will present the role of an educator. Appearing with her will be Dr. Paul Irvine, director of BOCES at Yorktown Heights. Also on the panel will be Dr. William Webster, a medical doctor from Hamburg.

MRS. LOUISE WUNDERLE

Besides her busy and dedicated work on behalf of those with learning difficulties, Ms. Wunderle has raised a family of four daughters, and a son who is an Air Force captain and son-in-law of a heart specialist. Her two youngest daughters will be graduated this spring from college.

Mrs. Wunderle first became involved in her profession when she developed the first Church School classes for retarded in Nassau County several years ago. At that time she conducted teacher-training workshops under the auspices of Nassau County Council of Churches.

Although leaving this area, Kingston Special Education teachers will still be able to learn from her by attending the Conference of New York State Association of Teachers of Mentally Handicapped.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH H. McROBERTS of West Shokan celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Sunday, June 15, at an open house held at their home. Married June 16, 1929 by the Rev. Rice, pastor of Olivebridge Methodist Church, they have two children, Mrs. Frank H. Bloom and Donald R. McRoberts who hosted the party. Many guests attended including the couple's five grandchildren.

Design Is Unlimited

When buying plants to set out in the garden, save the clay pots. Soak them in hot soap or detergent suds and then use a well-lathered brush to scrub them clean. Rinse, let the pots dry, then decorate them with spray paint or designs cut from self-adhesive plastic or colored tape. Their design possibilities are unlimited.

Jackson Draws Bead on Ruth's Record

Oakland Slugger Slams Nos. 25-26

(By Combined Wire Services)

The Kansas City Royals can't say they weren't warned when Reggie Jackson came to town. He is just not a singles hitter.

Ruth-like Reggie proved it again Wednesday night with two more home runs, his 25th and 26th, in another Oakland onslaught that sent the A's winging to a two-night doubleheader sweep over the Royals 16-4 and 9-2.

Only last weekend, the Royals must have read about Jackson's long-ball prowess in Boston where Oakland scored 38 runs to sweep a three-game series with Reggie hitting four homers and, in one game, driving in 10 runs.

Against the Royals, he hit three in four games, giving him nine in the last nine games and 11 for the month of June.

Jackson, with a chance to become the only man other than Babe Ruth to hit 30 homers by the end of June, hit his first homer of the night with a man on in the first game, keying a three-run eruption in the fifth inning that put the A's ahead 7-5. From there it was all downhill as Chuck Dobson coasted to his seventh victory against five defeats.

Jackson also weakened momentarily in the game, settling for a run-scoring single. It was only his 13th single of the season, half of his homer total. He also has 13 doubles and two triples for a .270 batting average.

The Royals tried another approach against the 23-year-old slugger in the nightcap—they hit him with a pitch in the first inning. But the A's went on to score five times in the inning, twice on bases loaded walks and once by another hit batter with the bases loaded.

And when Kansas City went back to pitching to Jackson, he hammered No. 26 in the sixth inning. All that was more than enough for John Odom, 9-3, who scattered nine hits.

In other American League action, the Yankees ended Detroit's seven game winning streak with three runs in the seventh inning to overcome a 2-1 deficit. The first scored on a wild pitch, the second on Jerry Kenney's sacrifice fly and the third on Bobby Mercer's double.

In National League play, the Mets defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0, on the strength of a four hitter by Jerry Koosman. Koosman, who by this time last year, had 11 wins in 13 starts, was happy to even his record at 4-4. The young Met ace had been suffering from shoulder trouble.

Koosman extended his brilliant pitching streak in which he has allowed just four earned runs and 27 hits in 51 innings. Ed Kranepool and Wayne Garrett singled home the Met runs.

Roberto Clemente displayed his value as a ballplayer Wednesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2 and completed a sweep of their four-game series.

Roberto tied the game with a two-run homer in the eighth inning, then doubled in the 10th and scored the winning run as Jose Martinez singled.

Against the Cubs, he came to bat in the eighth with the Pirates losing 2-0 and Carl Taylor at first with a walk and promptly rapped a Ken Holtzman pitch for his ninth homer. He picked on reliever Phil Regan for his double in the 10th and scored as Martinez singled.

Denny Lemaster pitched and batted Houston past Atlanta, 3-1 limiting the Braves to five hits and igniting a winning two-run rally in the ninth with his first homer of the season. George Stone suffered his first loss after winning six times.

Montreal, shut out by St. Louis the previous two nights, exploded against Dave Giusti and kept the Cardinals from reaching 500 with a 5-1 win. Mike Wagner scattered nine hits, blanking the Cards until Tim McCarter homered in the ninth. Lou May provided the Cincinnati power against San Francisco, clouting his 19th and 20th homers, each with a man on. Tony Cloninger gave up just five hits, dumping the Giants, 11-2.

Don Sutton pitched a three-hitter against San Diego for his 10th victory, 10-1. Wes Parker started the Dodgers off with a two-run homer in the first inning.

Back in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles did it again with pitching, turning back the Washington Senators, 3-1. Jim Hardin and Dick Hall combined on a four-hitter for the Orioles' sixth straight victory and 26th in 32 games. It was the 11th four-hitter for their staff to go along with three three-hitters, three two-hitters and one one-hitter.

The Orioles managed only five hits, but one was Boog Powell's two-run homer and another was a triple by Paul Blair, who scored on a sacrifice fly by Frank Robinson.

Ray Kaat, 7-5, scattered eight hits for Minnesota and hit a home run, but needed Harmon Killebrew's two-run, tie-breaking double in the eighth inning for his 3-1 victory.

Ken Harrelson homered for Cleveland's first run and then Russ Snyder raced home with the winning run in the seventh inning on a fielder's choice as Sam McDowell, 8-6, won his fifth consecutive game by spacing nine hits, winning 2-1.

The Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader with the Seattle Pilots, winning the first game 7-3 and dropping the second, 6-4, in 11 innings.

A three-run homer by Ed Herrman and a solo shot by Gail Hopkins helped Gary Peters, 5-8, to his first complete game and first victory since May 24 Chicago's opener.

The White Sox held a 5-4 lead in the ninth of the nightcap, but Tommy Davis tied it with a sacrifice fly and then won the game with a run-scoring double in the 11th after Tommie Harper walked and stole his fourth base of the night and 35th of the season.

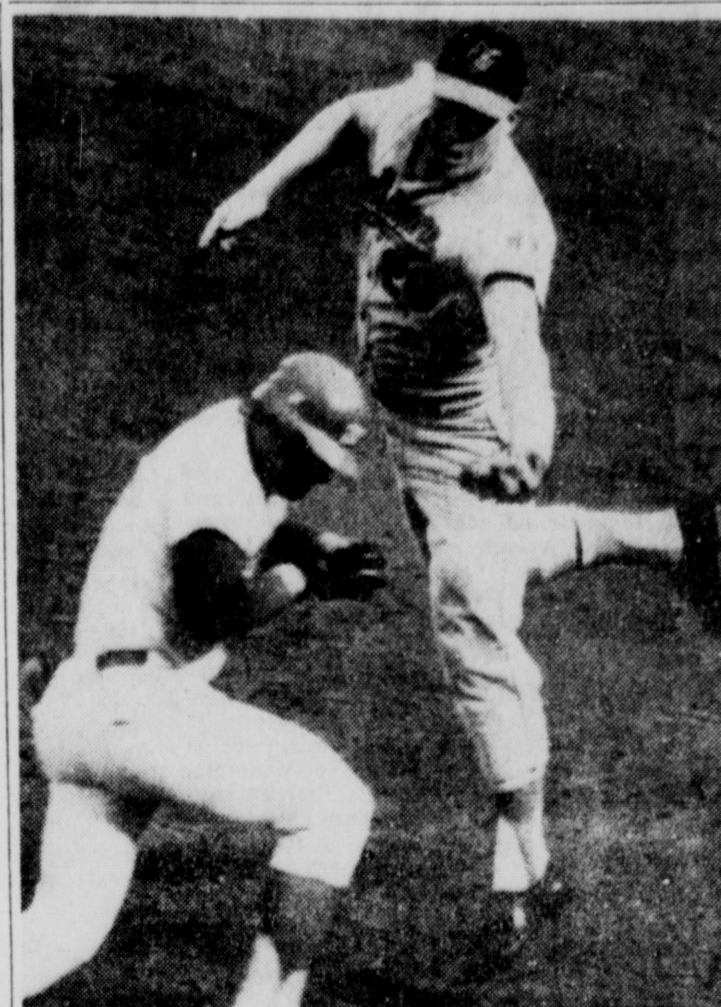

Peters pitched a seven-hitter in the first game, but the White Sox couldn't contend with Harper's larceny, as he stole four bases in the second game, raising his total to 35.

In the Yankee game, Kenney's sacrifice fly scored Jake Gibbs with the tie-breaking run as the Yankees rallied for three runs in the eighth.

Detroit led 2-1 when starter Joe Sparrna walked Gene Michael and Gibbs leading off the seventh. Both runners advanced on an infield out and Michael scored the tying run and Gibbs moved to third on reliever Pat Dobson's wild pitch.

Horace Clarke walked before Kenney drove in the decisive run.

Burbach, who went the first seven innings, gave up both Tiger runs. He walked Dick McAuliffe and Tom Tresh in the first and Norm Cash singled in McAuliffe. In the fifth, McAuliffe singled, took second on a passed ball and scored on Al Kaline's single.

OUT AT FIRST — Oriole first baseman Boog Powell (26) lunges toward Washington's Mike Epstein to tag him out on a wide throw from Baltimore shortstop Bob Floyd in the second inning of their game. Baltimore beat the Senators 3-1. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Magazine Claims

Mafia Biggies Close to Joe

NEW YORK (UPI)—Plans were in the making Wednesday for a truce session between "retired" New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath and professional football commissioner Pete Rozelle, but a sports magazine said Namath's connections with the Mafia were even stronger than had been previously reported.

Sports Illustrated said top members of the Mafia have been frequenting Namath's New York City nightclub, as Rozelle had complained, but also have been having crap games in Namath's apartment.

The members of the Mafia joined with "sportsmen, high rollers, business executives, bookmakers and loan sharks" in the games, the magazine said.

Sports Illustrated said the games were staged "under the protective muscle of Mafioso Thomas 'Tea Balls' Mancuso," a lieutenant in a Brooklyn mafia organization.

A percentage of crap game pots usually goes to the one who sets up the games, but this was not done at the "action" in Namath's apartment, the magazine said.

"Forget about cutting the game. This was done strictly for one thing—just to get to know them (professional athletes who might be drawn to Namath's apartment)...if they could nail one of them it would be great," the magazine quoted a Mafia source.

At least eight well-known bookies were regular patrons of Namath's bar and one was friendly enough to borrow Namath's car, the magazine added.

Rozelle ordered Namath to sell his interest in the nightclub, "Bachelors III," because it was a "hangout for undesirables" and threatened suspension. Namath balked and announced on June 6 his retirement.

But Namath said earlier this week he has hired a private detective to keep the undesirable element out and then met with Jets president Phil Iselin Tuesday. Iselin and Namath said they would try to set up a meeting with Rozelle next week to work out some sort of settlement on the matter, so Namath can play with the Jets this fall.

Gene Sarazen, the Germantown Squire, who may be in the county for an August exhibition and function, says the one senior golfer ailment no physician can cure is pride.

This is a sampling of the straightforward advice the elder statesman of golf puts forth in his book, "Better Golf After Fifty" now out in paperback, following its large hardcover sale.

Sarazen, renowned as an articulate and outspoken observer of the American golf scene for four decades, can speak with authority when it comes to dishing out advice to senior golfers. At 67, the winner of every major golf title in the world still shoots in the 70's over the demanding Masters course at Augusta, Georgia.

SARAZEN BELIEVES a senior golfer shouldn't experiment with his style in late years, but make adjustments in technique in deference to physical realities. For example, he suggests practicing with the "stroke saving" short irons and putter and not devote all the time on the practice tee to the woods to prove "you can still boom them out."

He finds strong hands and legs become increasingly important to the older golfer to compensate for the once supple back and a bulging waistline that tends to restrict the swing.

And when it comes to mental adjustment, Sarazen says "don't be too proud to lay up short on the water holes." That advice is applicable to golfers who are up in handicap as well as years.

There are more than 60 illustrations in the book as Sarazen covers every aspect of the game from actual technique to physical conditioning. Along with personal reminiscences and anecdotes, it's a book for golfers of all ages. It should be on your bookshelf.

MRS. SCOTTY ROBERTSON and Mrs. John Gaucas, wives of two of the pioneers of the Northeastern PGA circuit were reminiscing in the plush Sawyerkill Country Club cocktail lounge.

"It was nothing to walk 36 holes in the early days of the Northeastern," they said. "Thirty-six hole tournaments were common in those days. Eighteen holes in the morning, a break for lunch, and 18 more in the afternoon."

"Nobody seemed to mind walking in those days, even if we were younger. We followed John (Gaucas) and Scotty around many a golf course."

That was in another era of golf, of course. Now the lack of electric carts can be a total disaster in some tournaments.

We never objected to golfers with physical handicaps riding in carts, but the sight of young, vigorous men and women in carts turns us off. We've always felt that the walking in golf made it worthwhile. Not so today. But it's not just oldies. The average kid today will try to hitch a ride if he has to walk a block FAMOUS LAST WORDS: Joe Donakes is collecting $1 for hole-in-one insurance. Better sign up. You never know. There's a sheet on the main bulletin board.

Men are requested to pick up their golf shoes left these many months on the rack in the locker room.

The pull cart storage areas between the cart barn and the pump house is cluttered with carts of all vintages and condition. This area is going to be cleared out. After June 1, carts without name tags will be disposed of. Also, fellows, let's put carts in the rack. It's not very considerate to abandon them where others have to stumble over them.

Now laddies, have all these items been taken care of, pardon the grammar.

HERB TERNS is the assistant pro at Wiltwyck Country Club. Herb, a quiet, courteous and congenial young man caddied for head pro Ian (Scotty) Robertson, when the latter was at Oteora Country Club in Tannersville. Terns put in a three-year apprenticeship at Catskill Country Club under Bill Gressick and last fall completed his PGA school requirements. A fine golfer, he swings from the portside.

Scotty Dean, the 16-year-old Oteora High and Woodstock Country Club player who will bid for the Ulster County title this weekend, recently posted a career low 33-36-69 on the par-70 layout.

Scotty, who'll be the littlest challenger in the field, carded three consecutive birdie (4-5-6) on the front nine for his 33, then deuced the 4th again and the No. 8.

AFTER WATCHING 150 women flail away at golf balls Tuesday, we returned to our Woodstock home, settled down in a soft chair and promptly dozed off.

Several minutes later, it seemed like hours, we awoke with a start. We had just witnessed the greatest playoff in local golf history.

It was a blistering hot Tuesday (August 5) at The Twaalfskill Club and five contenders had just finished in a quintuplet tie for first place in the Ulster County Women's Golf Association championship tournament with 36-hole scores of 156.

Three old stalwarts—Wiggle DeLisio, the perennial champion, Chris Harris and Marge Newell—had fallen by the wayside, one stroke off the pace at 157.

THE FIVE PLAYERS tied at 156 were Betty Davenport, Mary Treat, Gerinda Goldmunz, Libby Kennedy and Eleanor Spiesman.

The sudden death playoff got under way with tremendous fanfare. Alex Gerlak, the resident pro, was scurrying around for marshalls and somehow I got stuck with the job of referee.

One by one the challengers dropped until finally at the fourth extra hole, a new champion was crowned.

By now I suppose you want us to divulge the winner of the tournament. What, and get four ladies mad at me!

Blue Gardenia Unbeaten in American Loop

KINGSTON Blue Gardenia defeated the Post Office, 9-7 Wednesday night, bringing its record to 6-0, good enough for first place in the American Division of the Kingston Slow Pitch Softball League. The Gardenia's are now 6-0. Levi Jackson was the winning pitcher, while Bob Finch took the loss.

In the only other game played, the Chargers defeated the Mets, 18-5. The game was terminated at the end of the fourth inning, with the winners 13 runs ahead, adhering to the rule that states that any team ahead by 13 runs at the end of four innings of play is declared the winner of the contest and the game is ended.

Mike Ortiz was the winning hurler, while Gilberto Alvarez took the loss. All other action was washed out as the rains came pouring down.

Gerald Barber and Fred Ector did the damage at the plate each man going three-for-five, with Ector picking up a double and a triple. Hal Hughes had two hits for the losers. The Gardenias needed two runs in the top of the eighth to gain the win.

Bob Gorsline went four-for-four. Rich Cyr went three-for-four and Mike Ortiz and Gert Chambers homered as the Chargers took the measure of their hapless opponents, coming up with 10 runs in the first stanza. Rick Marshall had a double for the Mets, their only extra-base hit.

Tavern Blasts Scarselli's From Unbeaten Ranks

SAUGERTIES Boo's Tavern knocked A. J. Scarselli's nine from the unbeaten ranks Wednesday night in the Met Division of the Saugerties Softball League, 6-3. Both squads were lacking their first-line pitchers, so Manager Joe Maines went out and picked up the win, with Sal Misasi taking the loss for the leaders of the Town Conference.

Scarselli's, who had committed but three errors in their first five contests, booted five in the first three innings, accounting for five unearned runs for the victors.

Boo's also gave up two unearned runs to the losers in the early going.

Rich Greco sparked the winners' three-run third stanza, as he belted a run-producing double and later stole home. Maines didn't have clear sailing, however, and had to pitch out of jams in the sixth and seventh, giving up one run and leaving four men in scoring position.

The second contest, between Ted's and Morgan's, was postponed due to rain. Tonight's schedule has Rotron playing Johnny's at 6:30 p.m., while Spartan Pools faces Michael's Barber Shop at 8 p.m.

Place 4-Hour Limit On Herdegen Field

KINGSTON A time limit of four hours will be invoked for the 1969 tournament which will be contested this weekend. Tournament Director Charles J. Tiano, said today.

The 36-player field seeking the county amateur championship tees off Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at Wiltwyck Country Club, with the finals Sunday at 8:30 at Woodstock Country Club.

Leon Randall is the defending champion.

"We will do everything possible to keep traffic moving," the director said. "We think it will make for a better tournament and reduce the exasperating delays that have marked previous play."

The 36-player field should be swallowed up on Wiltwyck's long layout and should move reasonably fast at Woodstock where the par-3 holes can get jammed up.

Randall, the perennial Wiltwyck Country Club champion, has won the title the last three years. He captured the 1967 event with a 36-hole total of 71-69-140 for a six-stroke margin over runnerup Harvey Bostic and seven over George Hughes of Twaalfskill, a three-time winner.

Among the new faces in the field this year will be Charles Stauffer of New Paltz; Mark Fleischer, an IBM employee with an outstanding collegiate and service record; Albert Queen, Charles Brown, Phil Buchanan and Ed Lattin, a quartet of unattached golfers.

The tournament is heavily favored with college and high school talent. Collegians are David Blakely, UCC's No. 1 player; Mike Mostransky of New Paltz State; Sam Spiegel of Ithaca and Jordan Pauker of Princeton.

Ted Decker, the colorful Rondout Valley Central youngster who led the qualifying round with a 69 at The Twaalfskill Club, heads the high school contingent. And it is the most impressive in Herdegen history.

Oteora High and Woodstock Country Club will be represented by Scotty Dean and John Buoymaster. Kingston High and Wiltwyck have standout representatives in Werner Kohn and Joe Bostic. Ed Lawrence, a teammate of Decker at Rondout, rounds out the scholastic field.

Five champions will be in the field, including Bill Van Aken and Harvey Bostic of Woodstock; George Hughes, Clarence Raichle and Rick Barthel of Twaalfskill.

Club champions participating are Toni Celli of Sawyerkill and David Dean of Woodstock.

The tournament winner receives a trophy and the traditional Herdegen jacket. Players in the low 12 will receive merchandise awards and be automatically qualified for the 1970 event which will be played at 70 holes.

Nets Lure Carnesecca For 1970 Coaching Job

NEW YORK (AP) — For $175,000, the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association lured Lou Carnesecca away from the collegiate coaching ranks, but they will have to wait for one year for the St. John's, N.Y. coach to take over.

Carnesecca, 44, signed a five-year contract with the ABA club Wednesday for a reported $35,000 per season. The colorful Louie will also be general manager and vice president of the Nets, starting with the 1970-71 season.

"This was an opportunity I just couldn't pass up," Carnesecca said. "It looks like a chance to get in on the ground floor of something that could grow."

For the coming 1969-70 season the Nets coaching job will be held by York Larese, a former North Carolina University player, who also played under Carnesecca in high school.

Carnesecca has one year remaining on a five-year pact at St. John's, and although offered a release by the university, he said he would honor his contract.

Jordan's Ninth Baseball Title His 39th UCAL Championship

By MORT LAFFIN

FREEDOM PLAINS Fritz Jordan, legendary mentor at Arlington High School, won the ninth baseball championship of his vaunted career, as his team posted a 12-2 record to capture the Dutchess County Scholastic League Central Section title. They were 19-3 overall.

Jordan, who is also the athletic director of the school, has been active in coaching since 1933, when he started with Pine Plains High School. After winning a soccer title at Pine Plains, Fritz, as he likes to be called, moved into the Arlington system in 1937, establishing a record that has made him one of the greatest, if not the greatest, ever to coach in the Valley.

The baseball title this year brought Jordan's total of championships flags to 39. Fritz coached all three major sports, from 1937 to 1962, when a disagreement on sports policies in the Arlington system, with the Board of Education, caused him to retire.

Michael Griffin, Superintendent of Schools, talked him into keeping his baseball assignment and appointed him A.D. This is his first baseball title since that time. His last DCSL basketball title came in 1960, defeating Saugerties in a playoff.

During his coaching career, he has won nine baseball titles, 18 basketball crowns, 11 football titles and one soccer championship. All of these titles do include sectional playoff wins and are strictly regular season pennants.

While this particular championship may be the most gratifying one of them all for the Admirals' chief, the 1949-50 seasons are the highlight of his career.

It was during this time that Jordan-coached squads pulled off a double grand slam, winning consecutive titles in football, basketball and baseball over both seasons. He is the only coach in the history of DCSL competition, to accomplish this feat.

Respected By Scouts Fritz is also well respected by major league scouts and has been instrumental in the signing of such area stars to major league contracts as the late John Nolan, former Saugerties star to the Braves, Glenn Santmire, Roosevelt High School great, also the Braves, Mickey SaVino, Arlington High School, with the Yankees and Bob Booth, Wappingers High School, to the Tigers.

The Arlington mentor was also in the process of establishing contacts for Ron Thomas, Kingston pitching star, with the Yankees, when he received word that Thomas went to the Tigers.

In speaking of his latest pennant winner, Fritz had nothing but praise for the members of his club.

"This is my kind of a ball club," he said. "These boys may never well be the greatest I have ever had the pleasure of coaching." "They deserve all the credit, they are the ones that did the job," said the coach.

Praises Top Pitcher Jordan was also quick to praise his main pitcher, Craig VanBogelen. VanBogelen came up with clutch performances throughout the season, winning the deciding game against Wappingers Falls. His record for two years with the varsity is 20-2, and, best of all, according to Fritz, is the fact that he is only a junior and will be back next year. In fact, only three regulars will be lost from the lineup. They are Butch Fen, Bob Webber and Steve Paganetti, this year's co-captain.

Arlington figured to be trouble after losing their other co-captain, Bruce Donkin, because of an injury. Donkin, starting at third, was the best hitter in the lineup, batting fourth, and has been considered by many to be one of the top major league prospects in the area. However, the team took up the slack and went on to win the title.

During the season, the Admirals ran off 13 straight victories, including wins over Newburgh, Kingston and Poughkeepsie, the first team to defeat those three opponents in the same season.

Landers' 3-Hitter Wins For Patrolmen

KINGSTON Mark Landers pitched a 3-hitter as Kingston Patrolmen's Association edged Hurley Lions, 5-4 in a Babe Ruth League contest.

The game was halted by rain after five innings. Trailing 5-1, Hurley had rallied for three runs in the bottom of the fifth.

KPA collected six hits off Harold Johnston, including a single and double by Glen Howard. Vito Mapes knocked in two runs with a single for KPA.

The Patrolmen wrapped it up with three runs in the third when Fran Vetere doubled. Charles Yankoglu singled scoring Vetere. Howard walked and Mapes delivered his two-run single.

In the Hurley fifth, there were singles by Dan Brown and Vic Nuylasy, a walk and two errors. The rains came at this point and the contest was stopped.

Pretty Shoulders to Cry On

HOUSTON (NEA)—Forget the animals that Joe Namath and Paul Newman stir in the bosoms of American female population. So what if Clark Gable could wiggle his ears? Feast your eyes, gentlemen, on Miller Barber's gift to the Bromo Seltzer generation.

As a sex symbol, Miller Barber comes on with all the charm of Buddy Hackett with his shirt off.

Barber is, nevertheless, a sex symbol, a 37-year-old beacon of hope for American males unfortunate enough to have been born ugly. (After blowing up in the final round of the U.S. Open—he led the field by three strokes after three rounds and wound up trailing by three—unfortunate, indeed is the best word to describe Miller Barber.)

Great Folds of Fat

Great folds of fat hang from Barber's belly. His hair is colored a delicate blond. His face, usually red, is of a nondescript quality that swoops gracefully from his broad forehead to disappear somewhere in his second chin.

Blotting out the middle of Barber's face are the omnipresent sunglasses. (No eye has ever seen his eyes.) Prescription to correct his critical nearsightedness, the shades instead of being cool and suave are of the goggle and wire type generally associated with motorcycle cops or bus drivers.

When Barber speaks, it is with a shy, whispering twang not easily understood. One usually cannot tell whether he just described a birdie putt or how to plow out the bottom 40.

He Sweats A Lot . . .

Finally, Barber says he sweats a lot. "Oh, man, ah'm 'bout to dai," he says, sticking a finger in a white towel and wiping his eyes beneath his sunglasses.

Yet, as was observed here during the U.S. Open, women love Miller Barber. Pretty women, Pretty young women. Pretty blonde young women.

Some golfers say Barber is a loner—the mysterious Mr. X behind the sunglasses, they call him. Not true, he says. "I like people as much as anybody, but I'm a bachelor and I like girls, so when I get into a town I try to stay as far away from married people as I can."

Not A Lonely Man . . .

Being a bachelor on the pro golf tour has been depicted as lonely by some fellows, says Barber, "but it all depends on who the bachelor is."

A pretty woman, about 40, from Memphis, Tenn., tried to explain what it was about Miller Barber that "turned her on."

She laughed. "There's something different about Miller," she said. "He does not turn me on the way Arnold Palmer does, if you know what I mean, but he's so nice you just like him—a lot."

While fellows like Doug Sanders go out of their way to promote their playboy image, Barber plays quietly. Everywhere he goes, girls go.

Plays It Cool . . .

"I don't try to swing during a tournament," Barber says. "I usually go out Mondays and Tuesdays . . . two scotch and waters are about all I ever drink."

Until last year, Barber was known in some circles as the Black Night. His golf course costumes consisted mostly of gas.

Dino's Challenge For HVSL Lead

Gallagher's and Dino's split a doubleheader this week by identical scores, 5-2 in the Hudson Valley Lost Pitch League.

Jim Spohr won over Rich Hoffman. Spohr is now 6-0 on the season while Hoffman lost his first against two wins.

Gallagher's are in first place with a 9-2 record. Dino's are in second with a 9-3. V.F.W. third at 6-6, Green Haven 5-6, and Stewart is 1-13 in last.

The leading hitters are: Irv Ellington (GH) .480, Richard Cotton (D) .464, Tony Zovatorski (D) .441, Skip Eggleston (VFW) .429 and Mike Porter (GH) .419.

Home run leaders are: Vern Darmstadter—5, Tony Zovatorski—5 and Gerry Amoroso—4.

In the pitching department leaders are: Jim Spohr 6-0, Nip Lasher 2-1, Rich Hoffman 2-1, Skip Eggleston (VFW) 4-3, Jim Spohr (G) 3-6, Al Crisei (G) 3-3, Rich Hoffman (D) 2-5 and Charlie Acker (GH) 2-3.

age door brown and basement black. "Now look at all this," he says, stretching his neck back to look under his sunglasses at his tangerine shirt. One wonders if his new wardrobe helped his bachelor pursuits.

"You bet your bottom, that is, dollar, it has," he says, grinning. Now that he's made more than $250,000 in nine years on the pro tour and owns a country club near Dallas, Barber is thinking about quitting and getting married. "The tour's not really a very glamorous life," he says. "Different hotels and different beds every week." Anyway, he says, the idea of marriage is beginning to sound appealing.

"I've got five or six prospects," he said. "Swinging Susies. I'm thinking very seriously of making a move pretty soon." Take your time, Miller. The world is full of ugly men. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Monmouth Awards Moore Scholarship

STONE RIDGE

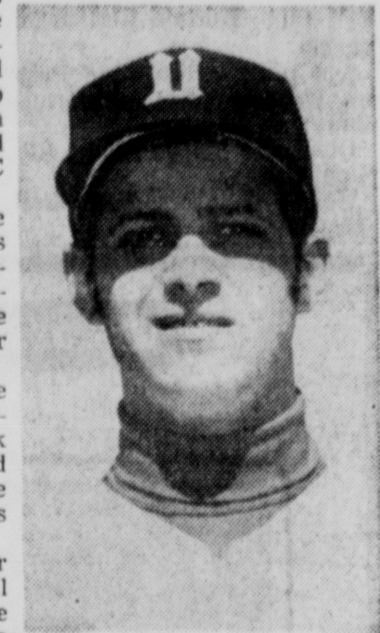

Charles (Charlie) Moore, one of the stars of the Ulster County Community College baseball team, has received a scholarship to attend Monmouth College in New Jersey. It was announced by Albert DiBernardo, the UCCC baseball coach.

Moore received an Associate in Arts degree from UCCC this month and will attend Monmouth College, starting in September, under a full trustee scholarship. He plans to major in sociology.

"I am pleased that Charlie Moore has received this scholarship, so he will be able to work for a four-year degree," said Coach DiBernardo. "He is one of our most deserving athletes at UCCC."

At Ulster, Moore was a pitcher and outfielder on the baseball team. He was named to the Region XV all-star team as a pitcher and was named to the Mid-Hudson Conference all star squad as an outfielder.

When Moore wasn't pitching for the UCCC team, he played the outfield and ended up the Kevin Coughlin of the Jaycee Little League dominates area Little Leaguers pitching with one no-hit game, two one-hit games and four shutouts to his credit this season.

Coughlin, who seems to be the Jaycee trademark, also has the single game high of 17 strikeouts and is second on the list for total strikeouts with 70.

The strikeout leaders are: Cliff Lyons, 73 (E); Kevin Coughlin, 70 (J); Paul Lawatsch, 53 (A); Walt DeBrosky, 52 (U), and John Burris, 41 (N).

Most strikeouts for one game leaders are: Kevin Coughlin, 17 (J); Paul Lawatsch, 16 (A); A. J. Maneen, 16 (H); Walt DeBrosky, 16 (U), and Cliff Lyons, 16 (E).

No-hitters have been tossed by: Cliff Lyons (E), Lou Eccleston (A), Johnny Aitken and Walt DeBrosky (U), Vince Guadagnola (N), Kevin Coughlin and John Conrad (J).

One-hit games have been fired by: Kevin Coughlin, 2 (J); Joe Seymour (H), Bob Anspacher (U) and Cliff Lyons, 2 (E).

Shutout wins have gone to: Kevin Coughlin, 4 (J); Cliff Lyons, 2 (E); Lou Casciaro, Don Yonta, Mike Rienzo and Ron Hines (A); Joe Seymour (H), Rich Terpening (N), Les Cloutier, Johnny Aitken and Walt DeBrosky (U).

Lyle Schuler of the Hurley LL and Bill Schabot of Ulster LL lead everyone in the home run hitting with four each. One of Schulers was a grand slam.

Fran Caprotti, Earl Mitchell and Adam Stauble of the Jaycee LL each have stroked three homers.

Players with two homers are: Lou Eccleston (A), Scott Moon and Cliff Lyons (E), Joe Primo, Paul Worthington, John Burris and Jim Lemister (N), one of Lemisters was a grand slam.

John Burris (N), David Schleede and Mike Rienzo (A) lead the triple department with two each.

Doubles have been quite popular in the American Little League with Shawn Schick and Paul Gallo each having seven.

Andy Cohen (E) and Bill Hazenbush (J) each have five to their credit.

Two players have collected five hits in one game, Paul Worthington (N) and Steve Engelhardt of the Ulster LL.

Four hits in one game has been accomplished by six players: Bill Hazenbush (J), Mark Johnson and Rick Hoffstatter (H), John Sumalski and Jim Maher (U), Tom Karol (E).

These records have been compiled from boxscore sheets received by the sports department of the Kingston Daily Freeman and may not be an exact report if officials failed to send in all boxscores.

Stadium for Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Erie County Legislature voted unanimously Wednesday night for a plan to build an air-conditioned domed stadium in suburban Lancaster, about 15 miles from downtown Buffalo.

The approval broke a 13-month deadlock over the site of the $50 million sports complex and a six-month standoff on the original presentation made by the Kenford Co. Inc., whose major stockholders would be Edward H. Cottrell, a Buffalo automobile dealer, and Roy M. Hofheinz, operator of the Houston Astrodome.

Cottrell said after the 190 vote that he expected ground to be broken for the construction in the fall and expected occupancy in the spring of 1972.

While the legislators were debating the stadium site, they kept architects busy on preliminary plans.

Under the terms of the resolution adopted, Kenford would lease the stadium from the county for 40 years and guarantee a minimum of $63.75 million through cash rentals and tax credits.

Cottrell told the legislators a 1,000-acre site surrounding the arena would become a year-round recreational and residential complex.

The facilities would include a championship golf course, hotels, restaurants, a showcase industrial center and multi-unit dwellings, he said.

Cottrell said the stadium would be the home of the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League and hopefully a major league baseball team.

He said he was highly optimistic of gaining a major league baseball franchise.

Present preliminary plans also call for the arena to be designed in such a way that it could be used for hockey and basketball games.

Architects projected late last month in a preliminary report on their design that the stadium would seat 55,750 persons for football and 49,715 for baseball in a circular configuration featuring seven seating levels and a 645-foot diameter.

They said a search was underway for economical and practical means of moving seating stands to provide room for 16,000 hockey fans.

Cottrell said that although several cities were discussing building domed stadiums, the action by the legislature gave assurances Buffalo would be the second area in the world to build one, and that it would be larger than the Astrodome.

The next step in finalizing the agreements between Kenford and the county would be completion of lease negotiations, which are scheduled to begin immediately.

If no lease is finalized, the resolution adopted Wednesday night stipulated Kenford would be hired to manage and promote the stadium for an unspecified percentage of the gross revenues.

A CONTENDER TO BEAT — Nevele Pride and Stanley Dancer will be seen at Goshen's Historic Track, July 4, in the $15,000 Titan Cup. The Grand Circuit 5-afternoon meet begins June 30. More than $200,000 in purses are awaiting the winners. A large field of free for all trotters is expected to go against Nevele Pride, including Bill Haughton in the sulky. Jonairo Captures Featured Fourth MONTICELLO—Rudy Sampson, Michael Bou-Earle Smith the driver, who came in second. Show horse was Timmy Wayne, driven by Philip Goodell.

Jonairo now has one first and five seconds in nine starts this year.

Wednesday night's daily double combination was 4 and 1, with identical times over the mile recorded in each, 2:12.1.

The opening event was a trot, taken by Star Spangled, driven by Eddie Accardi, in his first start in 1969. The seven-year-old horse by Scotch Victor-Star Rosecroft was out on October 28 at Freehold where he was distanced to come in fourth. Accardi, who owns and trains Star Spangled, has spent the winter nursing his property along to the point where he had one fair qualifying race at Monticello last week, coming in third in 1:09.3.

The second race pace was won by Senator Greene, George Gilmour the driver, who now has finished in the money in three starts in 1969. The four-year-old horse by Adios-Senator-Tascollette came in third at Liberty Bell on March 26. There was nothing in the past performance charts to indicate that either Star Spangled or Senator Greene preferred racing over sloppy tracks.

Junkman Trot Choice

Junkman, a six-year old bay gelding with a rather unimpressive pedigree, gets the handicapper's nod to take home top honors in the featured $2500 fourth race at Monticello Thursday night.

A son of Reach Up and Boulanger Mare, Junkman, owned by James Macker of Harwich, Massachusetts, will be looking for his third win of the season and the first at the Mighty M.

Young Ralph Andersen will be in the sulky behind Junkman whose best finish in five starts here has been a third.

Prior to coming to Monticello, Junkman recorded a 2:07.4 win at New England's Rockingham Park.

Another trotter also in search of his first local success of the season is expected to provide the most competition.

Speedy Love, winless in four Monticello efforts is rated as the second choice at 4-1, despite having drawn the seventh post position.

Trainer Leon Wunderlich will drive the 5-year-old speedster mare who is owned by the Blackfoot Stables of White Plains, N.Y.

Also expected to pose a serious threat in the race is Don and Shirley Corneau's Peter Eden with co-owner and trainer, Don Corneau driving.

Marion Sanford

Marion Sanford rolled the women's high foursome of 740 in the Women's Summer Classic League. Barb Nilson had two games of 211 and 201 to hit a 734, while Terry Becker had a 209 with a 717 total.

Kathy DeCicco hit 706-212, Michele Childs, 218 and Alberta Longendyke hit a 206.

Team results were: Roland A. Augustine 3, Team 4 1; Morgan Linen Trio 4, Team 3 0; Team 2 0, George Lamoreaux Mobile 4.

Leaking Barge Sunk in River, Trapping Cargo

ALMA, Wis. (AP) — A barge that leaked thousands of gallons of oil into the upper Mississippi River has been sunk, trapping the rest of its cargo in flooded compartments.

Barge Capt. Chester Forkum said about 64,000 gallons of No. 2 fuel oil seeped from four compartments ruptured in a collision with a wing dam Monday.

The barge was sunk Wednesday night after the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources ordered Forkum to halt the leaking.

Partially dispersed by rain, the escaped oil spread a thin brownish film about 20 miles downstream. Dead fish floated in it.

But conservationists' greatest fear—danger to ducklings that are hatched in the area—apparently weren't realized. Searchers said they were unable to find the broods of ducks that normally swim in the area's backwaters.

The Army Corps of Engineers was called in to help with the cleanup. Engineers brought a floating plastic boom to help corral the oil film.

A truck-mounted vacuum cleaner, normally used to clean sewers, was loaded on a barge to scoop up heavier concentrations of oil.

WHALE RESCUED — This 14-ft. Blainville's beaked whale was rescued from the surf near St. Augustine, Fla. The whale, being looked after by Marineland of Florida's curator Barry McAlister, weighs an estimated 1,400 pounds. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Best of Care Given Shetland Hurt in Mishap

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A little Shetland pony, worth about $25, is recovering today from a delicate operation performed by a veterinarian who generally confines his efforts to expensive race horses.

And, the pony—dubbed Little Orphan Annie by the veterinarian's wife—is a charity patient. "A little sentiment can go a long way," Dr. Howard L. Rand said after he and a bone specialist had set the pony's leg.

"Here's a pony worth no more than $25," Rand said, "and in the same ward (barn) I've also got a $108,000 race horse. Later this week, a $125,000 racer will be arriving."

Rand received the pony last Friday. The animal's leg had been broken in suburban Hapeville in a collision with a bus. Calls went out to destroy the 4-year-old Shetland, but the Atlanta Humane Society said it. It contacted Rand.

"We put a pin through a bone in the pony's leg," the veterinarian explained. "There's a cast on the leg as well, and we've added 10 pounds of traction. It's a rather ingenious device."

Rand said he planned to treat Little Orphan Annie for at least a month.

"Then," he said, "I suppose she'll be given to a child's home as a pet."

Rand said he has performed three similar operations, all of them successful, "but this pony was by far the worst. When I got her, she was in terrible shape. I wasn't even sure she would get well enough for me to operate."

The operation was delayed until Tuesday, Rand said, because the pony was in shock, preventing the use of anesthesia.

"You know," Rand said, "after all this work, it would really do me good to see this pony walk out of here."

Girl to Visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nagma Helmi, a 14-year-old Egyptian girl whose father was killed in the Arab-Israeli war of 1967, will visit President Nixon at the White House Monday.

The girl's father was a pilot who flew Nixon in Egypt when the President visited there as a private citizen in 1965. Nixon invited her to the White House after she wrote him a letter congratulating him on his election.

Federal Usury Law Need Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wright Patman, who has urged government retaliation against banks that recently raised their prime interest rates, says he wants to know administration thinking on the possible need for a national usury law.

Patman's House Banking Committee opened hearings today into the boost of prime interest rates to an all-time high of 8½ per cent with Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy listed as the first witness.

Patman, D-Tex., said in an interview before today's hearings he is not now advocating a federal ceiling on the cost for borrowing money but the possibility must be considered if the rise in interest rates is not checked.

"We are in the grip of the Wall Street banks," said Patman, banking committee chairman. "It is impossible now for the average family to buy a house."

The hearings bring a new confrontation between Patman and Kennedy.

The congressman has insisted Kennedy has a conflict of interest because of continuing ties with the Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago, which the secretary used to head. Patman says Kennedy should resign as treasury secretary, or be removed from the Cabinet post.

When the interest rate was boosted 10 days ago, Patman

NOTICE OF CHANGE IN GAS RATE SCHEDULE
Amendments to rate schedule P.S.C. No. 11—Gas filed with the Public Service Commission of the State of New York on June 4, 1969 to become effective July 2, 1969.

(1) In Section 14, Liability of Company, of the General Regulations to provide that the company may, without liability, interrupt service to any customer or group of customers in the event of an emergency threatening the integrity of its system or subject to the provisions of the emergency condition;

(2) add Section 16, Redistribution or Resale, of the General Regulations providing that a customer may furnish gas for use of his tenants, but the customer shall not receive any credit for gas so furnished or measure such gas and eliminate similar provisions from the Regulations;

(3) modify Service Classification No. 3, Off-Peak Large Volume Rate, to (a) add the designation Priority A to the title, (b) revise the "Character of Service" to provide that, with the consent of the company, gas may be system in order to provide a minimum supply of natural gas available to provide the service requested after taking into consideration the requirements of firm customers, company use and existing customers taking off-peak or seasonal service; and (c) provide that the company is not obligated to interrupt service simultaneously to all customers supplied thereunder to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; (4) add Service Classification No. 4, Off-Peak Large Volume Rate—Priority B, establishing an additional interruptible service under conditions similar to those applicable to Service Classification No. 3, but providing that the company shall endeavor to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; (5) add Special Provision 2, providing that the company is not obligated to interrupt service simultaneously to all customers supplied thereunder to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; (6) add Special Provision 3, providing that the company is not obligated to interrupt service simultaneously to all customers supplied thereunder to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; (7) add Special Provision 4, providing that the company is not obligated to interrupt service simultaneously to all customers supplied thereunder to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; (8) add Special Provision 5, providing that the company is not obligated to interrupt service simultaneously to all customers supplied thereunder to equalize total hours of interruption among customers; Dear Abby

Lunch Talks at Motel?

By ABIGAIL VAN RUREN

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: I'm a happily married woman with two children and a husband who is handsome, successful and hard-working. While hanging up his coat last evening, a motel key (from a local motel) fell out of his coat pocket. Since we live right in town I wondered what he needed a motel room for, so I asked him.

He told me that he has a lot of office business to talk over with his secretary, and he can't very well take her out to lunch in public because she's a divorcee with quite a colorful past, and people might talk. So, since he values his reputation as a straight-laced family man, occasionally he rents a motel room, where he takes her for lunch and discussions.

Abby, I've never had reason to distrust my husband in the past, but what do you think of this explanation?
WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Tell your husband that if he's concerned about "talk" — there would be more "talk" were people to learn that he rents a motel room in order to "talk" business with a secretary who has a colorful past.

DEAR ABBY: I know a widow in her seventies who is quite remarkable. (I'll call her "Aunt Mary.") Circumstances are such that this lady has had to make her home with her daughter for the last 10 years. Aunt Mary is active, cheerful and a joy to be with. Best of all, she knows how to keep from being "in the way."

Aunt Mary makes herself available to stay in the homes of parents who want a responsible adult there for week-ends or longer.
She does this not so much for the money (which she can use, of course) but she likes to get out of her daughter's home for a while. I have even known her to spend her own money to go to a motel for a "few days" — saying she needs HER privacy, when it is really her wish to give her daughter's family their privacy.

What do you think of a woman like that?
SALLY
DEAR SALLY: I think she deserves to be nominated for "mother of the year."

DEAR ABBY: How my husband has put up with me for 23 years I'll never know. All these years I thought I had married an over-sexed man, but now I have to admit there was nothing wrong with him. It was me. I'm frigid.

If mothers would only teach their daughters how to be loving wives it would do them more good than learning how to cook and keep the house. All these years I have kept a spotless home, and earned a reputation for being a fine cook. I even served, and took care of our garden, but what my husband needed was ME, and I foolishly turned my back on him. We are of moderate means, but we have never had words about money, sex, yes, but money no.

I know it's not easy to all of a sudden realize that sex between a man and wife is clean and beautiful and right, after having it drummed into your head that it is dirty and sinful and wrong.

Print this. It may help a younger woman.
LEARNED TOO LATE
DEAR LEARNED: It's never "too late." At least you learned.

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years and have wanted to write and comment on some of the letters and your replies, and now I finally have a reason.

I recently came across an article on "ANTIQUES" published in TIME magazine, May 2, 1969. With it appeared a picture of a couple serving SOUP from an antique CHAMBER POT!

No doubt these are the same people who objected so strenuously to bathing babies in the kitchen sink.

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

Forecast for Friday, June 20, 1969

MENU TIP: Lunar emphasis on Virgo, meaning simplicity, with highlight on vegetables. Combine beef with vegetables for a hearty stew — can be a main dish and a conversation piece.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on practical issues. High-light moderate approach, especially in eating, drinking. Don't make mistake of accepting surface values. Someone may be trying to deceive you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Favorable lunar aspect today coincides with journey, communication from afar, special correspondence. You are able to perceive future trends. Follow through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Stress on how to accomplish necessary tasks. You want change, but there are obligations. Key is to finish what has been started. Then you will have a more accurate view.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Dealings with relatives highlighted. Take course which leads to added independence. State position clearly. Be frank. You get chance to prove basic point of view.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on money, possessions. You can obtain legitimate bargain. But be sure you know what you need. Strive for practical approach. Then you gain feeling of fulfillment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take initiative. Be versatile. Have alternative methods at hand. You shine at social affair. Turn on charm. Be definite. Enjoy yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stress on ability to be quiet within. If you are, valuable answers will be forthcoming. Remain in background. Realize being alone is not the same as being lonely. Zero in on true goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get much of what you need if communicative. Means speak your mind. Friends will come to your aid. Evening favors social activity. Accept invitation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Excellent for getting together with those who share your interests — applies specifically to one in charge. You can find a common meeting ground. Do so.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight on long-distance calls, correspondence. Wise to take long-range view. Discard narrow concepts. Broaden horizons. Obtain hint from SCORPIO message.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be persistent. Dig for facts. Refuse to accept superficial answers. Permit mate, partner to take money initiative. Today, be a shrewd observer. Then there is ultimate gain.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight on how you appear in public. Realize many observe and look to you for example. Be considerate of those who confide problems. Let others know you do understand.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine sense of design. You appreciate music and have some dramatic ability. A domestic change, including residence, appears to be on horizon.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

ZANY ZILLION? (Q.) I've had a zillion dates (well, almost a zillion) with nearly a zillion girls. I still can't figure out what a girl is going to do next.

The older and more "wordly" I get, the more unpredictable girls are to me. Can you tell me how they think? Or do they think?—Puzzled in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Most girls do think. And much of a girl's thinking centers on the best ways to attract the boy she wants. When she thinks she has figured out the best way to catch him, she acts accordingly.

Often the road she takes is not the right road at all, and she does not feel at home on it, so she does strange and unpredictable things.

It's sad that we girls try to make ourselves over into what we think the boys we care for want us to be. We keep forgetting that all a boy really wants is for a girl to be herself and natural.

When a girl is sure of her man, the acting stops, and she again becomes herself and predictable. So if you like a girl let her know. If she likes you, too, she will settle down, be herself, and you will find her a lot more fun to be around.

LONG GLOVES: (Q.) At a party I'm going to, I'll be wearing gloves that come above my elbows. Do I take one or both off while eating?

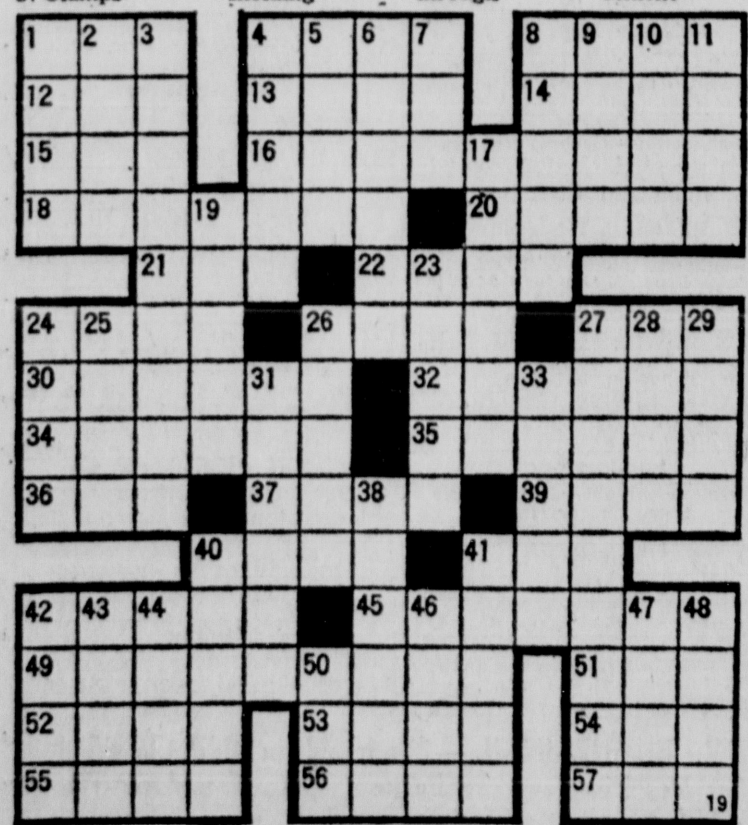

And I won't have a date. Can I buy myself a corsage?—Wondering in Nebraska.

(A.) Take both gloves off while you are eating. You or your family can properly buy flowers for you to wear when you don't have a date—especially if the flowers would make you and your dress look more interesting.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Cavett Doing Sensible Thing

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Cavett, loved by the critics but doing the sensible thing, is not doing the sensible thing. He is pretty certain that the Dick Cavett Show will be over, at least until after the first part of 1970 when ABC is likely to have some drop-outs.

"I just don't think about it," he says. "We tape the show three days in a row—that keeps me from having that Monday feeling more than once a week. The hour goes so fast, but except for that, it is like having the old daytime show."

Dick, a slight, blond fellow whose off-camera manners are as meticulous as his on-stage department, enjoys—he insists—his thrice weekly prime-time programs and really doesn't expect them to go on forever.

"We're expecting to get back in midseason," he said. "So when the summer is over, I'd like to take a long trip someplace. I'd never been abroad."

Mostly he works on material about upcoming guests. He leaves the booking of guests to his staff. "I'd never pick the right ones."

A few people, mostly those he has encountered on his daytime show, reassure him.

"You do get favorites," he said. "They are the ones who, the minute they come out, you Something will happen. I'm interested in other kinds of performing—motion pictures, of course, and I'd like to direct a comedy. For now, all I'm thinking about is this show and this summer.

The program is pulling a lot of mail, most of it glowing. He has been a little jittery about some of his off-beat guests but the outrageous ones have done nothing but help the show.

"I suppose I'm enjoying it," he said. "Actually it doesn't feel too much different from the daytime show, but of course I'm conscious that many more people are seeing it."

Unbid Slam Puts Opponents Down

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's monstrous game at the Naval Officers Club at Kaneohe in the Hawaiian Islands sometimes during World War II.

South was an expert temporarily wearing a Navy uniform. The rest of the field were playing duplicate for the first or second time.

There was a sort of shocked silence from the gallery when the expert opened with just one diamond. There was more silence when he rebid only five diamonds. There was considerable laughter when everyone passed. The expert made the same 13 tricks that anyone else would have made.

Needless to say everyone wanted to know how the expert could have overlooked the 13 tricks in front of him. He might have said that he thought two of his diamonds were hearts. The expert decided that the type of mind that caused a man to be a naval aviator (Kaneohe was a naval air station) would also cause him to refuse to sell out to a vulnerable grand-slam bid when not vulnerable himself.

The expert pointed out if he had opened with two diamonds and jumped to seven later on, or simply opened with seven, his opponents would be likely to sacrifice. That he had scored 640 for five diamonds with two overtricks (honors don't count in duplicate) and that all he could get against seven spades or hearts would be 300.

Sure enough, this East-West pair were unlucky. The aviators at the other tables were all high-fliers and minus 640 East and West was an unlucky bottom score.

CRITICAL AND SAD — Six-year-old Matthew Zimmerman lies on stretcher after being airlifted from 8000 foot level of San Bernardino mountains in critical condition after being

Boy, 6, Remains in Coma, Lost in Mountains Four Days

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)—A 6-year-old boy lay in a coma today after he was found barely alive in rugged mountains where he wandered for four days without food or shelter.

Matthew Joseph Zimmerman's heart stopped beating Wednesday as he was being taken out of the San Bernardino National Forest by helicopter.

His father, Stanley Zimmerman, believes Sheriff's Deputy Oliver Gray and the Marine helicopter crewmen saved the life of his son.

"The two men worked on him constantly on the way to North Air Force Base," Zimmerman said. "Gray took his clothes off and wrapped his body around Matthew. The other man gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation."

"I wanted to help but they just pushed me away. They knew what they were doing. I think what they did may have been what saved him."

Col. Russell C. Payne, who treated the boy at North before he was taken to St. Bernardine's Hospital here, said Matthew probably only had a few hours to live when he was found Wednesday.

The searchers found Matthew in a snowbank at 8:50 a.m., about 2½ miles from where he was reported missing last Saturday. The boy was unconscious and his eyes open.

Matthew wandered for 94 hours in a sport shirt, pants and tennis shoes. Temperatures at night at the 8,300 foot level where he was lost dropped to the low 40s.

The search through a 10-mile radius of Barton Flats eventually involved 250 men who used helicopters, jeeps, horses and bloodhounds to hunt for Matthew.

Warning to President On Campus Disorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has been warned by a group of House Republicans that student dissatisfaction with campus and national life is far deeper than generally realized.

"The critical urgency of the problem cannot be overstated," said the 22 congressmen in a 37-page report to Nixon based on recent visits they made to more than 50 colleges.

Despite their sense of urgency, the congressmen said it would be a mistake to enact any "rash legislation" that would cut off federal aid to a college caught up in a student revolt.

Rests With Colleges

In their major conclusion the GOP representatives said the responsibility for dealing with student dissatisfaction rested primarily with the colleges themselves.

"Any action by Congress," they said, "that would penalize innocent and guilty alike by cutting off all aid to any institution which has experienced difficulties would only serve to confirm the cry of the revolutionaries and compound the problem for each university."

The report, delivered to Nixon Wednesday, thus strengthened the administration's hand in its effort to keep the House Education and Labor Committee from approving legislation that would use the threat of withholding federal funds as a means of trying to control campus disorders.

The committee was about to approve such a bill when two Republican members, who were part of the group reporting to Nixon, changed their minds and refused to support it. A new effort to achieve a compromise is now under way in the committee.

The campus tour was carried out in secrecy by the Republicans who split up into teams and visited colleges in all parts of the country.

Rep. William Brock, R-Tenn., who organized the tours, has described them as an attempt to find out just what was bothering the students. The group visited large and small colleges, those that have been torn by strife and those that have been quiet; and private, state and all-black colleges.

In their report to the President the congressmen said they were alarmed to find the extent of student discontent. It went far beyond the handful of militants that is generally believed to be behind campus disorders, they said.

At the same time, they added, they were encouraged by "the candor, sincerity and basic decency of the vast majority of the students we met."

Other Suggestions

The congressmen had these other suggestions:

—Lower the voting age to 18 and amend the draft laws to minimize the "sword over the head" effort on young people now.

—Create a presidential commission to pursue the many criticisms and problems told the legislators by students, faculty and administrators.

—Expand students' opportunities to solve the social problems with which they are so preoccupied. The task force specifically recommended a National Youth Foundation and a student Teachers Corps.

—Increase budgets of the college loan and work-study programs.

—Improve education at all levels, since "the problems which have already surfaced on the college campus exist in various dormant forms in our secondary schools and the inadequacies which foster them can often be traced back even further."

Violence, Murder Shock Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first round of Senate hearings into violence in the nation has ended with testimony from two defectors from the Black Panthers party that the black power organization has degenerated into a cult of thieves exploiting the ghetto poor.

The Senate permanent investigations subcommittee listened Wednesday as Larry Clayton Powell and his wife Jean described an organization they said sexually corrupted teenagers, ordered the murder of dissident members and taught small children the art of crime.

Powell, 25, sat in the committee room wearing a solid-black uniform complete with beret, and carrying a copy of the red-covered volume, "The Quotations of Chairman Mao," and calmly described how he became a member of the Panthers' Elite Squad and Black Guard because of deeds "such as sniping missions, dynamite runs, carrying of various cargoes and disciplinary actions."

His mini-skirted 25-year-old wife, nervously smoking cigarette after cigarette, told the senators teen-agers are used to commit murder for the party, small children are ordered to steal and "Even teen-age girls are used by party members for their own satisfaction even though they are 14 and 15 years old."

"You mean . . . ?" asked Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

"Sexual satisfaction," Powell finished.

Earlier the committee heard two policemen, Sgt. Stanley White of Oakland, Calif., and Capt. John E. Drass of Washington, D.C., state that the Panthers were preparing for armed revolution.

"We say the only culture worthwhile holding onto is a revolutionary culture," White told the Senate panel.

Powell said he was told his original training "was for defense of the black community in the event of a revolution . . . our intent was not to start a war or revolution but to prepare ourselves for defense."

But, the couple said, most of the old leaders have been removed and with them the original aims of the Panthers. The new leaders aim "is not to help the black man in his struggle, but to use him as a means of furthering their capitalist exploitation of black and white people," Powell said.

Five Leading GOP Senators Will Continue to Support Lindsay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five leading Senate Republicans moderates say they still support New York Mayor John V. Lindsay for re-election and that his national political future will remain bright if he wins in November.

Declaring continued backing for Lindsay despite his loss in Tuesday's GOP city primary were Sens. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, Charles McC. Mathias Jr. of Maryland and the two New York senators, Jacob K. Javits and Charles E. Goodell.

Although he lost to conservative Sen. John Marchi in the Republican primary, Lindsay will be on the ballot for re-election as the Liberal party candidate.

Mathias predicted Lindsay's campaign against Marchi and Mario Procaccino, the conservative Democratic primary victor, would be in the tradition of the late Fiorello H. La Guardia, "a true fusion ticket." La Guardia was mayor of New York from 1934 to 1946.

The Maryland senator, after speaking with Lindsay by telephone, said: "He's full of confidence, and I believe justified confidence."

Goodell, calling Lindsay "a Republican symbol of urban commitment nationally," predicted "almost a nonpartisan election," with many leading

New York Democrats supporting Lindsay.

Javits, who plans a full statement of his position at a New York news conference later in the week, said "He deserves to win and I expect that he will." Hatfield, Javits, Brooke, Goodell and Mathias were among the 19 GOP senators who supported Lindsay in his primary fight.

A number of those on the list, including Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois and Hugh Scott and Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, declined to take an immediate stand.

But Percy said he was "most disappointed." Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Wednesday night in Pittsburgh the Nixon administration would support Marchi.

McIntyre's plan is to proceed with construction of two proposed ABM sites in North Dakota and Montana; but they would be designated as research and development facilities and equipped with radars and computers, but not missiles.

If arms control talks with the Soviet Union fail to materialize, missiles later could be installed at the two sites, saving the taxpayers, McIntyre estimates at least 10 per cent of what the Safeguard would otherwise cost.

Recent polls show the Senate subcommittee's plan next week.

Despite support for ABM on the committee, some members believe a compromise, such as McIntyre's, may be in the offing. They reason such a course would smooth the bill's passage out of committee and on to the Senate floor because the compromise would win support from some opponents and neutrals.

The compromise is reportedly the handiwork of Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H. The full Armed Services Committee, where there is heavy support for the full ABM system, is expected to vote on the subcommittee's plan next week.
